ROME AMBITIONS SUSPECT

MIGHT GO BEYOND ABYSSINIA

BRITISH GENERAL TO AID ETHIOPIANS?

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 23, 8 a.m.)

London, July 22. It is reliably reported that at a session of the Cabinet Council here to-night fears were expressed that Signor Mussolini's colonial aspirations would in all probability extend beyond Ethiopia, and lead to direct conflict with the British.

It was therefore considered urgent that the country seek means for settling the present dispute and that the League of Nations be urged to take action. Mr. Anthony Eden, Britain's Minister for League Affairs, would attend the League Council meeting later in the month, at which the Italo-Abyssinian dispute will be reviewed and a compromise sought, armed with full authority, declares the United Press.

Incidentally, the League of Nations is probably on its "last trial," declared Mr. Rhys Davies, Labour member, presiding at a dinner given by a group of members of the House of Commons to-night, designed to enable the Abyssinian Minister to Britain to state his country's case, says Reuter.

BRITISH STAND

Paris, July 22. The British Ambassador to-day acquainted M. Laval, the French Prime Minister, with the outcome of the British Cabinet meeting which considered the Italo-Abyssinian dispute to-day. It is reported that Great Britain favours the whole problem being thrashed out before the League of Nations Council. Such an attitude places France in a quandary, as she is equally desirous of maintaining agreement with both London and Rome, and Italy is very much opposed to full discussion of the Abyssinian affair at Geneva.—Reuter.

GENEVA EXCITED

Geneva, July 22. With the approach of July 25, when the League Council is scheduled to meet, League quarters are agog with speculation. It is believed that Britain's attitude will determine the League's line of policy.

BRITISH GENERAL TO FORM BRIGADE

Durban, July 22. Brigadier-General J. R. Royston, C.M.G., D.S.O., 75-year-old veteran of the South African War, is offering his services to the Emperor of Abyssinia.

He proposes to raise a brigade of volunteers to participate in "this unjust war."—Reuter.

M. Maxim Litvinoff, the Russian President of the League Council, is at present in Italy and will meet Signor Mussolini shortly to discuss the question of League procedure, in all probability.

Up to the present it has been possible to hold League action under Article XV of the Covenant, under which Abyssinia appealed for intervention, but the appeal cannot be side-tracked indefinitely.—Reuter.

MAINTAINING LEGATION

Washington, July 22. It was revealed here to-day that the United States intends to maintain its Legation at Addis Ababa regardless of what may be happening in Abyssinia.—Reuter.

COMMONS ENLIGHTENED

London, July 22. A group of all parties of the House of Commons to-night attended a dinner designed to enable the

PROTECT AMERICAN FARMERS

PRESIDENT EMPOWERED

Washington, July 22. Moving to protect the Administration's farm programme against court attacks, the Senate to-day voted to validate the crop control contracts between the Agriculture Department and the farmers. The Senate then struck out the last vestige of the price-fixing provisions of the Agriculture Adjustment Administration by adopting an amendment requiring that no marketing agreement may be entered into among the handlers of agricultural products. The Senate, by a vote of 60-17, adopted the A.A.A. amendment permitting the President to impose quota restrictions on all agricultural imports to preserve the price gains achieved by the domestic farm programme.—Reuter.

Abyssinian Minister, M. Martin, to state his country's case. Mr. Rhys Davies, Labour member, presided. He declared that the League of Nations was probably on its last trial.

The former Egyptian Minister to Britain, Moharrar Pasha, and the former Speaker of the Egyptian Parliament, Riffat Pasha, both expressed their sympathy with Abyssinia and thanked the British Government for its efforts to prevent war.

M. Martin detailed the recent improvements in Abyssinia, especially the reforms regarding slavery and the slave-traffic, and justice.

The root of the trouble, he said, was that Italy wanted to take over the whole of his country, ostensibly to civilise it.

ABYSSINIA TO BORROW

The Abyssinian Minister, M. Martin, interviewed by Reuter, said that tentative negotiations were going forward with individuals with a view to placing a $2,000,000 loan in Britain or

No Embargo On Arms To Abyssinians

CABINET'S DECISION

London, July 22. Abyssinia was under discussion at the extra pre-adjournment Cabinet meeting to-day.

It is believed that the Government has decided not to place any embargo on the export of arms either to Italy or to Abyssinia as no steps for the control of armaments exports to these two countries have been taken by any other nation.

Hitherto application for permission to export arms in connection with the Abyssinian dispute have been held under consideration.

Sir Samuel Hoare, the Foreign Minister, is expected to make a statement on this matter in the House of Commons shortly.—Reuter.

DAVID SASSOON STRICKEN

SERIOUSLY ILL IN VANCOUVER

Vancouver, July 22. Mr. David Sassoon, 70-year-old member of the famous British banking family, was rushed to hospital here seriously ill from the Empress of Japan as soon as the vessel arrived from Shanghai to-day.

Mr. Sassoon has been in Shanghai for some time, and is well known in Far East commercial circles. Grave fears are felt for his state of health.—Reuter.

America for the purpose of developing Abyssinia. He added that the Government had received letters from hundreds of volunteers wanting to fight for Abyssinia. Some of the volunteers wanted to fight without pay.

"It is a strange thing that many of these volunteers were Irish," he said.—Reuter.

ITALY FINANCES

Rome, July 22. The Italian Government has suspended the clause stipulating that there must be forty per cent. gold coverage for the nation's notes.

The reason for the suspension of this clause is alleged to be the urgent need of the Government to procure money to make payments abroad. The decision is entirely at variance with the hitherto adamant official policy of maintaining a high nominal lira value.

Considered in conjunction with the Duce's recent warlike pronouncements, this step is taken to imply that the Government regards the situation as extremely serious and intends to pursue its course to the end whatever it costs the country.—Reuter.

MONEY DECREE

Rome, July 22. The decree published in the official gazette here to-day, relieving the Bank of Italy of its gold obligations becomes effective immediately.

The official Gazette states that the measure is "necessary and urgent to secure means for payments abroad of an exceptional nature."

The enforcement of the first paragraph of Article 4, of the Royal Decree of December 21, 1927, which obligated the Bank of Italy to keep its stocks of gold to a value not less than forty per cent. of the value of notes in circulation and which was converted into a law on June 17, 1928, is to be temporarily suspended.—United Press.

EFFECT ON LONDON

London, July 22. Brokers here are asking for twenty per cent. margin on new business. This measure is tending to ease the exchange market here. The Italian action is believed to be bringing pressure on the London market.—United Press.

TIN PRICE SOARS IN LONDON

NO SUPPLIES ON HAND

London, July 22.

An extraordinary position, with no tin on offer for cash sales, was disclosed in the London tin market to-day, not even when the price advanced £9 to £245 per ton.

This price is the highest for the past seven years and is £37 per ton higher than in February.

The situation was later explained as being due to "a technical hitch" on the part of the International Tin Control Committee, and later the metal was quoted at £237 per ton. Cash figures are higher than the price for delivery three months hence.

It is known that the Control Committee holds 1,400 tons in the United Kingdom.—Reuter.

HIGHWAY CODE FOR EVERYBODY

London, July 22.

The Post Office started to-day on the enormous task of distributing to every house in Great Britain a copy of the "Highway Code" containing a simple summary of rules for their observance in the interest of road safety.

The distribution of fifteen million copies of the Code, which is expected to require five days for completion, is part of the intensive efforts of the Minister of Transport to reduce the number of road accidents, and other features of this week's campaign are a tour by a broadcasting van, the release of road safety propaganda talk, a display of 300,000 posters in London, and a broadcast address at the end of the week by the Minister of Transport himself.—British Wireless.

IMPERIAL AIRWAYS RECORD

London, July 22.

In the House of Commons, the Under-Secretary for Air, Sir Philip Sassoon, stated that he was unable to give figures in respect of other services, but in the case of the Imperial Airways there were no fatal accidents in 1934 during flights on regular services totalling 2,315,000 miles.—British Wireless.

Warriors' Murderous Enterprise

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 23, 6.30 a.m.)

Nairobi, July 22. Details of the attack by Masai warriors on the camp of Mr. Buxton, District Commissioner, last month, were revealed at the inquest on two natives who were killed in repulsing the attack.

A dramatic statement was made by a wounded Masai, who stated that the attackers intended to kill everyone in the camp wearing clothes. He added that they would have succeeded but for the fact that Mr. Buxton's small force was armed with rifles.

Graphically describing the attack, this witness said his party only fired after the Masais disobeyed two warnings. He was unaware of any grievance on the part of the attackers, but he blamed a ceremony from which the men had just emerged for their frenzied condition.

At the warriors' trial the Magistrate completely exonerated Mr. Buxton, sentenced forty warriors to a year's hard labour for rioting, three to two years for robbery, and one to three years and eighteen strokes with the cane for assault. Several were acquitted.—Reuter Special.

TENSION IN LAHORE

TEN KILLED IN RIOTING

London, July 22.

The disturbances at Lahore, occasioned by dispute between Sikh and Mohammedan communities regarding the ownership of a temple, were the subject of a House of Commons question to-day, in reply to which the Under-Secretary for India, Mr. Butler, stated that fresh trouble had broken out during the week-end.

Large crowds of Muslims, assembled with the object of proceeding to the Shohidganj Gurdwara, had assumed a violent attitude towards the police, and despite charges by police and mounted police, they refused to disperse. Firing became necessary on two occasions on Saturday, after all other efforts to disperse the crowds had failed, and after a warning had been issued by the magistrates, and again on three occasions on Sunday.

In all, twenty-three rounds were fired and the number killed is reported not to exceed ten. He added it was reported that the situation was under control and responsible Muslims were doing their best to persuade their co-religionists to desist from defiance of the law.

Express messages from Lahore indicate that peace efforts are continuing and that the situation is well in hand.—British Wireless.

CHILE CONGRATULATED

London, July 22.

In the House of Commons, the Foreign Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, announced that His Majesty's Government had addressed congratulations to the Chilean Government on the important part taken by it in bringing about a cessation of hostilities between Bolivia and Paraguay.—British Wireless.

DEFENDS GERMAN NAVAL PACT

AVOIDED DANGEROUS ARMAMENTS RACE

London, July 22.

The Anglo-German naval agreement was severely criticised by speakers of all parties in the House of Commons to-day. The Labour member, Mr. George Hall, complained of the Government's inconsistency for condemning Germany for repudiating the armaments provisions of the Treaty of Versailles and, in the next breath, concluding an agreement for the increase of German naval strength which in itself was a violation of treaties to which Britain was a signatory.

Vice-Admiral G. Campbell, V.C., Nationalist member and famous commander of "Q" boats in the War, who was given credit for breaking the German submarine blockade effectively and finally, said the agreement gave Germany a brand new navy whereas much of the British tonnage was verging on the obsolete.

Mr. David Lloyd George, former Liberal Prime Minister, expressed dismay at the light-hearted way the Government not merely condoned the number of submarines at present existing in Germany's yards, but arranged for the building of many more.

Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, First Lord of the Admiralty, pointed out that the principle of naval ratios had to a large extent to be abandoned because some countries thought it wounding to their national pride to accept inferior strength.

"The principle on which we are now acting is to ask each country to state what navy it would have in 1942," said Sir Bolton, the object being to endeavour to seek an equitable relative strength for all sea powers.

DANGER AVOIDED

Rebuffing criticism of Britain's unilateral action in arranging the Anglo-German accord, Sir Bolton said that the multilateralism of the present agreements and treaties caused the German demand for a new army of a total strength of 650,000, instead of 300,000. The same thing had occurred with regard to air armaments.

"We could not afford to have the same sort of thing happen to naval armaments," he declared, and was echoed by loud ministerial cheers.

The abolition of submarines stood in the forefront of Britain's naval policy, said Sir Bolton. "We welcome German co-operation and hope that with it we shall have a better chance of successfully pursuing our aims at the coming general naval conference."—Reuter Special.

WORLD GLIDING RECORD

GERMAN FLIES OVER 300 MILES

Berlin, July 22. A world gliding record is claimed by Ludwig Hoffman, who, starting from Wasserkuppe, in Hesse, yesterday morning, landed to-day near Oskovice, a distance of 310 miles.

London, July 22.

The Under-Secretary for Air, Sir Philip Sassoon, announced in the Commons that the Government had decided to make an annual grant of £500 for five years for the assistance of gliding. A scheme for the allocation of grants for development of gliding had been submitted by the British Gliding Association and had been accepted in principle.—United Press.

NAZIS' WAR ON CHURCH

NO UNIFORMS OF FIELD DAYS

(Special to "Telegraph")

Berlin, July 22. Further developments have occurred in the Nazi church war as the result of a new order issued by Herr Frick, the Minister of the Interior.

The order forbids Confessional Church and youth organisations, especially Catholic, from wearing uniforms or badges, or to parade publicly with flags, or participate in field days.

Similar orders have been enforced in a number of districts, but the new order will extend throughout the whole country.—Reuter Special.

OUTPUT BOUGHT IN ADVANCE

One of the finest tributes paid to British films comes from Howard S. Cullman, manager of the world's largest cinema, the celebrated Roxy—"Cathedral of Motion Pictures"—in New York. The Roxy gets 6,200.

Mr. Cullman, who is now in London, has just bought in advance every picture that the Gaumont-British Picture Corporation are making for the foreign trade this year. The pictures number 16.

"The Clairvoyant," starring Claude Rains, is showing in New York now before being seen in London. "The Thirty-Nine Steps," "The Guv'nor,"—the new Arles picture—"The Tunnel," and "King of the Damned" will follow.

"I did not buy British pictures—the New York public bought them for me," Mr. Cullman told the Daily Telegraph. "One week I was at a loss. I saw a British picture called 'I was a Spy,' with Conrad Veidt, Madeleine Carroll, and Herbert Marshall, and liked it well enough to take a chance.

"It was a 'hit.' The critics raved about it; 125,000 people paid to see it. From this we went on to show 'Little Friend,' 'Chu Chin Chow,' 'The Man Who Knew Too Much,' 'Evergreen,' and others till we reached the point where we could show two British pictures in the same programme.

"The British accent used to be a bar. To-day we are more used to it. I believe that if your people will keep off costume and pageant, and concentrate on modern stories with a good tempo, you will claim an increasingly large proportion of the world's market."

HELEN MORGAN'S DIVORCE

Helen Morgan, film actress and beauty queen, was at Los Angeles recently granted a divorce from Mr. Maurice Maschke, a Cleveland lawyer to whom she was secretly married in 1933.

Cruelly charged against her husband were made (says frederic) by Helen Morgan, who declared that Maschke "never worked, never tried to find work, and when I was talking to someone else had a habit of putting his hand under my arm with what appeared an affectionate gesture while, in reality, he was digging his finger nails into my tender flesh."

Helen Morgan made her name as Julie in Ziegfeld's "Showboat," and also starred in Jerome Kern's operetta, "Sweet Adeline." She was born in Chicago in 1900 but went to Montreal to study singing, and there won a beauty contest which gained her the title of Miss Canada.

LILLIAN HARVEY BACK IN BERLIN

Lillian Harvey, returning to Germany recently after a long absence, was greeted by Willi Fritsch, the German star whose name has often been romantically linked with hers, with a large bunch of red roses when she stepped out of the air liner at Tempelhof Aerodrome.

She is to begin making a film entitled, "Black Roses" in July in German, English, and French. Willi Fritsch will play opposite her in the German version.

Lillian was met by film directors and an official from the Propaganda Ministry and many friends. There was an immense crowd of "fans."

Newspapers had been jubilantly proclaiming her return to Germany.

MAKING JUNKET

JUNKET is one of those apparently easy sweets which, however, require great care if they are to be perfect. When properly made it should cut quite clean and be smooth and firm. Heat a quart of milk to the temperature of new milk (this is about 98 degrees Fahr.), add to it a dessertspoonful of rennet or a special junket tablet, pour it into a glass dish, and leave without disturbing at all until set.

Spread over it some whipped or clotted cream, and sprinkle castor sugar and either grated nutmeg or cinnamon on top. Some people add a little brandy to the milk along with the rennet.

ACTRESS MARRIES ATHLETE

A Judge, in his shirt sleeves and without a tie, performed the marriage ceremony at Yuma, Arizona, recently, of Lill Damita, the Paris-born film actress, and Errol Flynn, the Irish athlete.

The couple, who were elegantly dressed, had made a special flight from Hollywood. They had taken every precaution to keep their engagement a secret, but the news of their impending marriage leaked out.

Flynn is the son of a professor in Ireland. Lill Damita, who is 28, had notable film parts in "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," "The Cock-Eyed World," and "Friends and Lovers." She appeared at the age of 14 in the ballet at the Opera de Paris, and at 19 succeeded Mistinguette as star of the Casino de Paris revue.

RAMON NAVARRO FOR LONDON STAGE

News was received in London recently that Ramon Navarro, the screen star, has been signed up to appear in a musical play, "Royal Exchange," which will be produced in a London theatre in the autumn.

The film star will leave Hollywood for England at the beginning of September, to begin rehearsals.

U. S. CREDIT INFLATION

BUSINESS FAITH NEEDED

By FRANK P. S. GLASSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York.

The United States to-day possesses reserves of cash and bank deposits which experts calculate would permit a potential expansion of credit of $105,000,000,000.

Such credit would be sufficient to finance a boom before which the speculative pyrotechnics of 1929 would pale into insignificance.

There is only one barrier to the immediate use of this vast potential credit volume. That is business confidence.

This vast credit reservoir has been created principally by Government spending that has necessitated billions of dollars of treasury borrowing. Since June of 1932 the Government debt has increased by more than nine billion dollars.

When the Government borrows the common practice is the sale of bonds to banks comprising the Federal Reserve System. Instead of actually paying the treasury in cash for the bonds, the banks create on their books a definite credit to the treasury's account.

When the Government finances relief any construction projects it draws cheques against credits which automatically have been created when the banks purchased the bonds. Those cheques are made payable to contractors, sellers of supplies and disbursers of relief funds, and usually act to swell their bank accounts correspondingly. In many cases, no money has changed hands, yet individual bank accounts may have been increased by millions of dollars. As collateral for these accounts, a bank has the government bonds which it has purchased.

The total bank deposits—including both time and demand deposits—now approximate $20,000,000,000 against $16,000,000,000 at the beginning of 1934. Net demand deposits alone have crossed $16,000,000,000 for the first time since 1929, and are 20 per cent. higher than they were a year ago.

With such bank credits near the all-time record, some economists say, it is only a question of time until businessmen, feeling a return of confidence, begin to draw on the idle funds. If they did so they might start the pump operating at top speed, and credit inflation might then be more than an academic term to the average citizen.

WIPE OUT EUROPE

BRITAIN ONLY WORTHY OF ESCAPE

"All the countries of Europe, except Great Britain, should be wiped off the map."

This was the startling statement made during an interview at Portland Oregon, by Mr. R. Masujima, of Tokyo, who is a prominent member of the Japanese Bar, a Fellow of the Inner Temple, and an honorary member of the American Bar Association, says Reuter.

Mr. Masujima is on a short visit to America where he will speak before the annual convention of the American Bar Association.

"If all those European countries were completely wiped out, then the rest of the world would be at peace," he declared, "all their civilization is behind them. I would leave Britain, because it is a great example to the rest of the world, even an example to you Americans."

HITLER AS A CHILD

REVELATIONS BY SISTER

Vienna, July 13. "One day our father almost killed Adolf, who was then about 12 or 13 years old, because the future 'Fuehrer' of the 'Third Reich' demonstrated for the 'Anschluss' (union between Germany and Austria)." Fraulein Paula Hitler, Adolf Hitler's only sister who lives in Vienna, recently told her friends.

"From his savings Adolf had purchased a black-red-golden ribbon, the symbol of the Austrian Pan-Germans who agitated for the re-union of their country with Germany and were, therefore, considered as traitors under the Hapsburg regime," she related.

"This ribbon Adolf proudly dangled from his waistcoat pocket. The school teacher noticed it and indignantly informed our father."

"Father, a customs official at Braunau on the Austro-German frontier, and a convinced follower of the Hapsburgs, got into such a fury that he beat the boy senseless. 'Nevertheless' Adolf did not yield, but continued, although clandestinely, to wear his ribbon."

"This was not the only thrashing Adolf had to undergo from his father, who was an irascible man and who considered his son as a stubborn and obstinate good-for-nothing."

"Adolf was, it is true, always very taciturn and reticent."

"When asked by his family what he was pondering about, he usually replied with a shrug: 'What is the use of telling you; you would not understand.' Paula concluded her narrative."

LOVE SACRIFICED

Soul and heart she is devoted to her brother. For her nothing but Adolf and his "Cause" exists.

Fifteen years ago, when a pretty buxom girl of 23, she was in love with a young man of promising talent and artistic ambitions. At that time, the Nazi party was just making its first steps in public. Paula felt that in her heart there was no room for both the "Cause" and love.

She chose the "Cause" and told her lover so. What the decision meant to a healthy, loving, young woman can easily be imagined. The lovers have, however, remained friends ever since.

In character as well as in physical respect Paula has much in common with her brother. The resemblance between the two is striking, although Paula is a bit shorter and more stocky of stature, and although her cheekbones are a trifle higher and give a Slavic touch to her appearance.

Both possess an indomitable will-power; once they have set their minds on something, nothing in the world will make them deviate from their paths.

It is believed by his Austrian friends that Hitler, like his sister, had renounced marriage because he is convinced that for a character like his, family life and the "Cause" are incompatible.

WHY THEY LIVE APART

One-sidedness and stubbornness which both possess to an extraordinary extent is perhaps the main reason why Paula chose to stay in Vienna instead of follow-

TALKIES FOR QUEEN MARY

THREE CINEMAS ON LUXURY LINER

The Cunard-White Star Line has decided to equip the ship Queen Mary with complete talkie apparatus, which will enable three separate performances to be given simultaneously. The contract, which calls for the finest and most complete specifications which have ever been supplied for shipboard use, has been given to the engineering section of the Gaumont-British Corporation.

The specifications call for the same quality projection as is supplied to the super-cinemas ashore.

First-class, tourist and third class sections of the Queen Mary will be catered for, each class to have its own cinema. The first class equipment is to be installed in the lounge, off which a complete talkie projection booth has been built.

In the tourist lounge similar arrangements have been made for the installation of an entirely new type of talkie apparatus—which completed successful trials on the test bench only last week.

The third-class talkie programmes will be shown in one of the several public rooms in this class. In this class the entire apparatus is of a portable nature, and can be erected and dismantled anywhere in the space of a few minutes.

ing Anna Raupach's, her step-sister's, example and going to live in Germany where she would meet a more congenial atmosphere.

If not wittingly, at least subconsciously, she may feel that continued contact between two characters of such equal obstinacy would unavoidably lead to clashes.

She is, therefore, satisfied with an annual visit to her brother, and, for the rest, to admire him from afar.

Paula is absolutely free from any personal ambition. When in Germany, where her brother is the almighty ruler, she tries to be as unobtrusive as possible and never permits her name to appear in the papers.

She hates publicity of all kinds and lives in the greatest retirement. Never has she given an interview, nor has any stranger been admitted across her threshold.

She dresses very plainly and wears mostly dark garments, although she possesses artistic tastes and has arranged her apartment with great thought in light and gay colours.

With her brother she agrees that the "Fuehrer's" relatives should not draw material profit from his exalted position.

She therefore deeply regrets that he cannot find a new job and must depend on her brother's allowance, albeit insignificant.

Paula has no political aspirations, and she carefully abstains from taking part in political activities. Nor has she ever permitted any ovations which Austrian Nazis would be only too glad to offer to their "Great Fuehrer's" closest relative—United Press.

STOMACH CAMERA

SIXTEEN PHOTOS IN HALF A MINUTE

SIZE OF A LEAD PENCIL

(By David Dritz.)

United Press Special Correspondent.

Atlantic City, N.J.

A camera no larger than the end of a lead pencil which makes 16 simultaneous photographs of the interior of the stomach in 30 seconds was described by one of its inventors, Dr. Herbert Hofmann of the Institute Modelo of Buenos Aires, at the recent convention of the American Medical Society.

Collaborating with Dr. Hofmann in the invention of the stomach camera was Dr. J. P. Uslenghi, Professor at the University of Buenos Aires.

The stomach camera is unique in that it is swallowed by the patient in a small rubber balloon. The camera is on the end of a rubber tube which makes its withdrawal simple.

The balloon is distended with air pumped through the tube after the patient has swallowed it. The distention of the balloon causes the stomach to distend, smoothing out the wrinkles on its wall. This distention serves also to focus the camera by insuring that the walls of the stomach are the proper distance from the camera.

The balloon is then punctured by a device connected to the tube. A brilliant electric light which is part of the camera flashes on and the 16 pictures are taken in a hundred and twentieth of a second.

The camera does not employ lenses but minute pinholes, operating on the principle of the pinhole camera. The sixteen films employed are each about a quarter of an inch square.

From them enlargements can be made and a model of the interior of the stomach constructed.

The camera represented a development of researches begun by Prof. Joseph Heilpern of Vienna. It is being used successfully in diagnosing stomach ulcers, cancers, and other diseased conditions of the stomach.

ANOTHER DEVICE

It was the second new diagnostic device demonstrated in the course of the A.M.A. meeting. Dr. Rudolf Schindler, a refugee professor from Germany, now at the University of Chicago, described a flexible Gastroscope for examining the interior of the stomach. This was a sort of periscope, the first half consisting of a rigid metal tube, the lower half of a flexible rubber tube.

A system of 40 lens in the tube makes it possible for the physician to look down the tube and view all parts of the interior of the stomach.

A review of events during the week's meeting of the A.M.A. reveals many important advances in the diagnosis of diseases and their treatment by drug and surgery. It also reveals that in the main, organized medicine in America has made no changes in its social outlook.

From the viewpoint of social action, the new move of the A.M.A. was to create a committee to study the problem of birth control. During the last five years, the house of delegates has consistently refused to discuss the subject at all.

Recalled from his estate at Ilminster, Somerset, where he was farming as a hobby, Sir Philip Game, former governor of New South Wales, will take over the duties as head of the Metropolitan Police of London, more commonly known as Scotland Yard. In taking this post he replaces Lord Trenchard who is retiring. Sir Philip distinguished himself in the World War. He has held several important posts with the Royal Air Force and has commanded that body in India.

With cycling becoming increasingly popular in the Old Country as the weather grows warmer, the problem of what to do with Master Baby, crops up. It is solved in a perfect manner, however, by this Inverness cyclist and his wife, who built a tiny sidecar for their bicycle in which the child sits with comfort enjoying the fresh air and countryside. A glass windshield protects the child from dust and dirt.

GOITRE OPERATIONS

TO BE PERFORMED AT CANTON BY VISITING SURGEON

Dr. Harry W. Miller, head of the Seventh Day Adventist Sanitarium in Shanghai, arrived in Hongkong on board the Dollar liner President Wilson yesterday morning, and left for Canton in the afternoon by train.

Dr. Miller, immediately on arrival at Canton will perform twenty goitre operations at the new Seventh Day Adventist Sanitarium in Canton. These special cases are the first of their kind to be done at the institution. After performing these operations, Dr. Miller will fly from Canton to Shanghai, leaving the southern city on Thursday.

COMMERCIALLY, THE UNKNOWN QUANTITY DOES NOT EXIST!

Every merchant buys his stocks in terms of number, weight or measurement.

One cannot imagine, for example, a merchant buying a hundred dollars' worth of golf balls without knowing exactly how many he would receive!

The terms of quantity in newspaper circulation are calculated by Chartered Accountants who prepare reports showing the exact number of copies sold per annum.

OBITUARY

DEATH OF FATHER OF LOCAL HEADMASTER

The many friends of the Rev. C. B. R. Sargent, Headmaster of the Diocesan Boys' School, will sympathise with him in the loss of his father, the Rev. D. H. G. Sargent, who passed away at Home on Friday.

The late Mr. Sargent was educated at Clifton College and St. John's College, Cambridge, where he took his M.A. degree. After a year at Ridley Theological College he was ordained and became curate at Cheltenham, where he married in 1905. Shortly afterwards he became Rector of Cusop in Herefordshire and then Vicar of Holy Trinity, Hereford. In 1914 he became Secretary of the Church Pastoral Aid Society in London and later of the Church of England Zenana Missionary Society, which he left in 1928 to become Vicar of St. Luke's.

Mr. Sargent was one of the English representatives at the World Missionary Conference at Jerusalem in 1927.

He was very prominent in Freemasonry, being Past Grand Master of the Old Cliftonian Lodge and a member of several other Lodges.

His elder brother was the famous surgeon, Sir Percy Sargent, who died a year ago. The news of his death, which was received by cable on Sunday, was entirely unexpected, as he had always been remarkably fit and active; it apparently followed an operation for appendicitis. He leaves a widow and three sons.

MINISTER CHOSEN

UNION CHURCH INVITES REV. KENNETH DOW

At an extraordinary meeting of seatholders and subscribers of the Union Church, Kennedy Road, held on Sunday, it was unanimously decided to extend a call to the Rev. Kenneth Dow of Glasgow to fill the vacancy in the pastorate caused by the retirement of Rev. E. G. Powell.

The Rev. Kenneth Dow was born in Glasgow in 1907. He was educated at Hillhead High School and graduated in arts at Glasgow University. He completed his training in Divinity at Glasgow Trinity College, being licensed by the Presbytery of Glasgow in March 1933. Since completing his studies Mr. Dow has been engaged as assistant to the Rev. A. Cruikshank, B.D., of Scotswood Parish Church, Glasgow, where Blawarthill Mission Church has been his special care.

Mr. Dow has already won golden opinions of his parishioners on account of his preaching gifts and his success as a minister, and his impending departure is being keenly felt.

If Mr. Dow accepts the call it is expected that he will arrive towards the end of the year.

TIN PRICES

SUDDEN RISE OF CASH QUOTATION

London, July 22. Bewilderment prevailed on the metal exchange this morning when the price of cash tin rose to $9 with a backwardation increasing to over £20.

This appears a further example of the artificiality of operations owing to the apparent unwillingness of the Buffer Pool to release supplies, which are already extremely low.

Today's demand was in no way above the usual, but there was a complete absence of sellers at the cash position, and it is feared that under these conditions prices for cash may rise still further during the course of the next few days.—Reuter.

LAKE TRAGEDY

ELEVEN YOUNG GIRLS DROWNED

Berlin, July 22. Eleven out of 21 girls and Mother Superior Agnes von Martheim were drowned when a motor boat capsized during a storm on Lake Darenthener, near Allenstein.

The boat which is supposed to have had seats for only fourteen passengers sank within a hundred yards of the shore.—Reuter.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET UPWARD YESTERDAY

New York, July 22. The following reports on the New York Stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz:

The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market—Stocks today reached the year's high level, carrying the general list upward. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were higher with the exception of a few utility and sugar issues. Bonds were irregular, but high-grade Corporation issues were higher.

S. C. & P. New York office cables: The market was strong, especially towards the close when it broadened. Some Republic's sales for 27 weeks ending July 16 are up 28 per cent. as compared with the corresponding period of last year. Steel mill activity during the past week is estimated at 42.2 per cent. of capacity, compared with 35.9 per cent. the previous week.

New York and Chicago commodity reports received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz:

Cotton: It is predicted that the present session of Congress will last until November 1. Mills are operating on a hand-to-mouth basis, with a continuation of curtailment probable. Wheat: Prices declined on decreased rust advice and on the slightly overbought condition of the market. The visible supply of wheat shows an increase of 1,814,000 bushels. Corn: The market declined on favourable weather conditions and increasing offerings. Visible supply has decreased by 366,000 bushels. Rubber: The Trade is awaiting the result of the meeting of the Control scheduled on July 30. There are hopes of further restriction. Sugar: The market was steadier on a better demand for raws and lighter offerings owing to the fact that Cuba plans to withdraw 100,000 tons from the market. Further advances are likely when the Cuban action is confirmed.

WAR CLOUDS

Now that there seems small hope of a peaceful adjustment of the dispute between Italy and Abyssinia, it is worth while to look into the circumstances which have provoked the present crisis. Abyssinia, as is well known, except where it borders on Egypt is surrounded by territories ruled by Britain, France and Italy. Relations between Italy and Abyssinia have been strained for some years, and on several occasions Italy has threatened the Abyssinian border, for the frontier between them is desert country and no definite boundary has ever been made. It is this undefined frontier that has caused all the trouble. In 1908 the countries concerned concluded a Treaty saying that their frontier should be 180 miles from the sea. Part of this Treaty said that the actual boundary should be marked by wells of water, but this has never been done, and both Italy and Abyssinia accuse each other of failing to co-operate. By September, 1934, trouble was brewing. Abyssinia was said to be arming, and Italy was moving troops to Somaliland. Both Governments, as is usual in times of danger, stated that their relationship was entirely friendly, but they had their eyes on the wells. Ualual, a town sixty miles west of the unknown frontier, appeared in Italian maps as part of Italy's dominions, while the Emperor of Abyssinia, who was tightening his hold on his outlying provinces, declared that Ualual was part of his province of Ogaden. In November, 1934, an Anglo-Abyssinian Commission went to Ualual. A clash with Italian colonial troops occurred and after nearly a month no solution of the main problem was reached. The British Mission made every possible effort, but it was continually thwarted by the uncompromising attitude of the Italian representative. This officer stood by his Government's original view, that Italian dominion must cover the provocative wells in addition to the town of Ualual. After the fighting of last December, each side blamed the other for beginning it. Abyssinia protested to the League that she was willing to give reparations if her responsibility for the outbreak could be proved, but Italy refused arbitration, and her troops continued to advance. For some months, the League of Nations did not actively intervene, in order to give direct negotiations a chance of succeeding. Ultimately, however, when tension continued to increase on both sides, the whole dispute came before the meeting of the Council at the end of May, and an Italo-Abyssinian Commission was set up, with a time-limit fixed for its negotiations. Before that time-limit expired, it was obvious that no settlement could be reached. Now the League Council is again to take the matter up, but meanwhile all efforts at conciliation, in which Britain has played a prominent part, have failed. The only hope of peace lies in an eleventh-hour willingness by Italy to have the issues adjusted without recourse to war. Unhappily, the indications give little hope of such a desirable outcome.

NOTES OF THE DAY

THE CLOSED DOOR

Whatever Great Britain's critics may think and say of her past, for the last several decades she has been pre-eminent amongst the nations which have striven for peace. In the opinion of some she is the only nation in Europe, whose counsel is of any consequence, working wholeheartedly for the avoidance of war. Together with France—whose tortures in battle have been too great for her to risk reduction of her armaments or relaxation of the guard upon her frontiers—Britain is making an eleventh-hour effort to prevent an outbreak of hostilities between Italy and Abyssinia. As she did in 1914, so she is doing now: trying to stamp out the embers of hatred and distrust which have caused the mobilisation of great armies. There is now a suggestion that an Italo-Abyssinian clash may involve other nations and repeat the tragedy of 1914. Although French sympathies are allegedly with Italy in her dispute with the Ethiopians, France too sees the marching menace of events, the risk of rousing Africa to revolt, the possibility of a spreading of the fires of war into Asia and Europe. Neither compromise nor concession will satisfy Italy. Only the complete humbling and subjugation of the Ethiopian state will soothe Rome's ruffled feelings. Abyssinia, by her defiance, by her show of courage and of pride, has closed the door on any possibility of reconciliation, it appears. But if Abyssinia has closed the door, Italy has locked it, and has apparently thrown away the key. Great Britain and France have offered. There will most likely be war in Africa. War for the sake of colonialism, in the name of progress and humanity, surely belongs to another era. Is not the world too old to rear another Caesar?

A BIG JOB

Irisome and uncomfortable times are ahead, at least that is likely to be the view taken of the effect upon all the people of these islands of the precautions against air raids in time of war, says the Edinburgh Evening Dispatch. After many years of consideration and preparation by a special department of the Home Office the plans of defence, it is said, are about to be made public. Only England is mentioned in the unofficial forecast, but it may be assumed that Scotland too will be fully provided for. The basis of the scheme is the municipality. In each a large committee will be formed and be responsible for the organisation of civilian defence. To that end all the public services will be enlisted—fire brigades, police, medical officers of health, burglar surveyors, transport, water, gas, and electricity officials; ambulance workers, and the Red Cross Society. The owners of large buildings, such as factories and warehouses, will also have their part to play. Evidently it is not proposed to put all the inhabitants into gas masks; only the members of what are called the essential services will have that protection. But everyone will have instruction of sorts; elementary guidance in the protection of houses and rooms against gas attacks, precautions during an attack, and treatment of victims of gas poisoning. All this may read simple enough, but to be carried out with any serviceable degree of efficiency it will require enormous labour and very thorough organisation. How will British citizens react to this discipline? They have the reputation of being too cool to be easily startled and too casual to subject themselves to direction and instruction at the hands of any committee. The civil authorities, who apparently are to be primarily responsible for the organisation, will need all the sympathy and help they are likely to get.

It is my belief that, while a newly engaged couple are far from normal, the dangers to which they are subject are not half so numerous as those which confession after marriage lets loose.

Confession may gratify your conscience, but at the same time jeopardise the future of your married happiness. The acid test of every contemplated confession should be a regard for the future as distinct from the past.

It is impossible for any woman, until she has lived with a man for a number of years, to anticipate how he will react to her confession. Men are strangely illogical animals, and though they will often forgive a criminal offence, they will react very differently to an emotional one.

Personally I deplore women's traditional code on these matters which panders to her delight in delving into the past and divulging secrets which involve others, whereas to most men the past is past, and they prefer to let it lie.

WOMEN LONG TO CONFESS

By URSULA BLOOM

THE question of whether confession of the past should be made before marriage must depend on the temperaments of the persons concerned—and the chances of ultimate revelation.

This may seem like shirking the issue, but all with experience will know that any offence which goes into public records cannot, like good buoys, be kept down.

Any happenings in the past likely to demand confession are bound to fall into one of two categories: offences against the State or against the individual. Offences against the State must be divulged; an offence against the individual requires consideration.

As a general rule, I should say without hesitation: Put a double lock on the door of the past, and if possible put something over the fanlight. If the door is opened much more is let loose than was ever locked in.

Women persistently long to confess. They do so not for the future happiness of husband or potential husband but for the sheer joy of satisfying their own love of the confessional. (Why does it give women such a "kick"?)

I maintain that an incident repeated is never the same as it was when it was enacted. Time and atmosphere cannot be recaptured, and instead of the sympathetic moment which, even if it does not justify, at least explains the lapse, you are faced with seemingly very ugly facts that can never be satisfactorily cloaked in words.

The main danger is that after two or three years, when the intoxicating glamour of engagement days and honeymoon is not so acute, jealousy and suspicion may arise. A man, feeling that people confessing will endeavour to exonerate themselves and to lighten their own part in the offence, broods upon the revelation and fills in details which were never there.

It is my belief that, while a newly engaged couple are far from normal, the dangers to which they are subject are not half so numerous as those which confession after marriage lets loose.

Confession may gratify your conscience, but at the same time jeopardise the future of your married happiness. The acid test of every contemplated confession should be a regard for the future as distinct from the past.

The Very Idea!

SENSE AND NONSENSE

More Jottings From The Eddie Kelly Notebook

ATTENTION, girls! Just a few words, before we start this fascinating column, on how to use your lip-stick and face powder.

If there's one thing that must be used artistically and correctly it's these messes that get all over our clothes and face when we take you out puddle-faking.

With a few accessories you'd be surprised what a difference powder and paint can make to a girl.

First of all, it is necessary to have a face, with a mouth in it. The face should be washed and, if the means are at hand, dried. A piece of well-chalked string is then tied to one ear, stretched across the face to the other ear, and then given a slight flip with the fingers.

This will result in a white chalk-line across the face, which will give the position for the rouge on the cheeks. The rouge may be applied with a small mop or a trowel, care being taken to scoop any surplus out of the ears.

The face is then taken across to the dressing table and pushed into the powder. With the face buried, blow vigorously, thus distributing the powder all over the face and neck. Some cream the face before powdering. This gives a nice stucco effect.

Now take the left hand and slide it down the face until you come to an aperture. This is the mouth. Work the lip-stick into whatever shape the mouth is to be, and press it on while still plastic.

When pencilling the eyebrows always use an indelible pencil. Nothing is more untidy than a girl who, while pushing her hair back, has wiped one of her eyebrows off. Those lucky girls who can yawn naturally should add the weeniest touch of rouge to the tonsils.

That will be all for the present, girls. Remember—Art, and plenty of it.

Romance

The tourist and the touriste stood entranced at the scene. Away to the left was the Lido gleaming white in the moonlight. On the right was the replica of the Edinburgh Castle. Below, lawns of exquisite loveliness, bordered with flowers and as the eyes rose, far off islands glistened in a sparkling junk-laden sea of silver. It was Repulse Bay, and the third day of their honeymoon in Hong-Kong.

"Darling," she whispered, "isn't this heavenly?"

He sighed.

"Do you know," he exclaimed, "life doesn't seem long enough for our happiness. Just think, even if we are fortunate, our married life can hardly last longer than fifty years."

"Is that all?" she queried, nestling closer.

"Yes, only fifty years in which to love each other."

"Then kiss me quickly, dear," she said, "we're wasting time!"

REVIVING N.R.A.

ADVISORY COUNCIL APPOINTED

ONE-MAN RULE

Washington. The N.R.A. Blue Eagle, revived in an emaciated form after its defeat in the Schechter case, has returned to one-man rule with a new nine and half months lease on life.

James L. O'Neill, former New York banker and recently control officer of N.R.A., was named by President Roosevelt to have complete charge of reorganization under the Extension Act passed by Congress.

Mr. Roosevelt, in his executive order setting up the new organization, indicated he anticipates further legislation to broaden and strengthen the present stop-gap N.R.A. arrangement. He hinted some such legislation may be sent to Congress.

"So long as there is possibility of further legislation, it will be desirable to maintain the general structure of the recovery administration in Washington and in field cities, and to retain those essential members of a trained personnel who can be usefully employed," he said.

"There will be lasting values in a careful appraisal of the two-year accomplishment of N.R.A. and in preserving for permanent use the records of that experience," the President added.

O'Neill, as acting administrator, will be assisted by Leon C. Marshall, labour member of the seven-man N.R.A. board which expired at midnight on June 16, and Prentiss L. Conoley, a code administrator.

Marshall will head a board to gather data on business and industry.

Conoley will direct a division of business co-operation to aid business firms that desire to maintain voluntary codes.

George L. Berry, President of the Printing Pressmen's Union and until June 16, a division administrator, was named as assistant to O'Neill, representing labour.

The order set up an N.R.A. Advisory Council consisting of: Howell Cheney, Philip Murray, Emily Newell Blair, President William Green of the American Federation of Labour, Walton Hamilton, and Charles Edison, son of the late inventor.

TWO MAIN FUNCTIONS

In returning N.R.A. to a one-man control, the President followed a desire expressed several months ago. The Recovery Agency had been directed by a board, lately headed by Donald R. Richberg, resigned, since Gen. Hugh S. Johnson stepped out last year.

The President did not indicate how many of the 5,400 N.R.A. employees would be retained, but declared a "steady but gradual reduction of personnel" to be a sound public policy.

"The administration of the Amended Act will proceed as rapidly as possible to adjust activities and personnel to conform to present limited objectives," Mr. Roosevelt said.

Under the President's order, the new N.R.A. extended to April 1, 1935, will have two principal functions:

1. A study of the effects of the codes of fair competition and the result of their elimination. This work will be under the direction of Marshall.

2. Co-operation with business in the formation of voluntary maintenance of standards of competition. This work will be under Conoley's direction.

The President did not expand his reference to possible future N.R.A. legislation. He has proposed legislation providing that government contractors must agree to maintain certain standards of wages, hours and the elimination of child labour.

It was believed, however, that in his executive order the President referred to a programme to be presented to the next Congress.

This, it was believed, may include amendment to the constitution to give the Government powers of business control which the supreme court ruling denied. United Press.

"ADVERTISE
PEACE"AND BRING BACK
PROSPERITY

Advertising as an aid to national recovery was advocated by Sir Robert Webber, a past president of the Newspaper Society, at the Advertising Convention at Torquay.

"If prosperity depends on peace, and in any case nobody wants war—there seems to be a good cause for advertising peace," he said.

"National recovery and international recovery might come more speedily through a peace campaign in all the newspapers of the world than by any other means."

Sir Robert, who dubbed the six-penny telegram the "Tannergram," contended that the results obtained by the Post Office showed that there were many other directions in which they might expect Government support for their belief.

He advocated the spending by the Ministry of Transport of £50,000 on an advertising programme to educate road users in their duties, the resuscitation of the Empire Marketing Board, and greater advertising by industry, possibly on a co-operative basis.

"Is everything being done to popularise our famous cutlery, our famous cloths and dress material?" he asked.

Lord Hiffe, who presided, emphasised that the very basis of national success was confidence. The Jubilee celebrations advertised to the whole world our confidence in the Royal Family and our confidence in our constitution. Its advertising value had been enormous.

"We can say with truth that the Jubilee celebrations have materially helped forward national recovery."

Mr. Alfred Pemberton said: "The Press has always been, and remains, far ahead of every other type of advertising media, both in economy and results."

SIR HARRY BOYD

KNIGHTHOOD FOR ABLE

London, July 22.

His Majesty the King conferred the honour of knight commander of the Royal Victorian Order on Mr. Harry Robert Boyd.—Reuter.

Sir Harry Boyd, who is now Ceremonial Secretary to the Home Office, was at one time well known in the Far East having been in business in Shanghai from 1899 to 1911. He was also attached to the Chinese Ministry of Finance, Peking, in 1914, but in the following year went home to become private secretary to the Under Secretary for Home Affairs.

He was Deputy Assistant to the Secretary to the Ministry of Reconstruction, and was later private secretary to a succession of Home Secretaries, quite regardless of political colour, serving with Mr. Short, Viscount Bridgeman, Mr. Arthur Henderson and Sir William Joynson Hicks. He was appointed to his present post in 1925.

The Swedish Consulate General in Shanghai will be obliged for any information about the present whereabouts of the Swedish citizen, Erik Wilhelm Friman who returned to Shanghai from Hongkong during last winter.

Professor W. I. Gerrard, after his recent operation, has now left the Government Civil Hospital.

COMPANY MEETING

P. AND O. BANKING CORPORATION

Mr. W. E. Preston, chairman of the P. and O. Banking Corporation, Ltd., presided at the bank's fifteenth annual meeting held at 122, Leadenhall-street, E.C. The report and accounts were taken as read.

Before turning to the year's operations, the Chairman referred to the loss which the Board had suffered by the death of a very old and valuable colleague, Sir Montagu Turner, a close friend of the late Lord Inchcape, who had joined the Board on the foundation of the bank. He, personally, he said, had had many years' intimate association with Sir Montagu Turner as Chairman of the Chartered Bank, and he and others received at his hands much kindness and warm-hearted interest.

The result of the year's transactions, after making all necessary provisions, showed a profit of £112,393 in 1934, compared with £112,393 in the previous year. They had written off £5,000 on their premises account and were carrying forward a balance, after payment of the usual dividend, to the next year's account, which was £22,436 in excess of the amount brought in.

Difficult Trading Conditions

The Chairman referred to the work and care of their managers both at home and abroad, who had been unremitting in their endeavours to make the best of the very difficult conditions which continued to beset trading generally and particularly the international exchange of commodities and manufactures. He added that, though there had been both in this country and in India an improvement in local conditions from which internal trade and internal industry had benefited, there had been no equivalent expansion in the foreign trade. Both in volume and in value the amount of trade which was handled between this country and India and the Far East had not sensibly increased and was very far short of the figures which they would like to see them grow to. In China, in particular, economic and trading conditions had been almost undermined by the silver policy of the U.S.A.; merchant business under such conditions was severely handicapped, with silver fluctuating within the short period of three months from 36½d. to 31d. could only be conducted at hazards which it would require the stoutest heart to undertake.

In India there were, fortunately, signs of better conditions from which the cotton and textile industries from Bombay, where the mill industry had been to some extent protected from the intense competition of Japan.

Effect of Artificial Restriction Schemes. In Calcutta the jute industry recorded a welcome recovery in the early part of the year under review; some of this recovery had since been lost in consequence of the measures introduced by the Government for the restriction of the production of the raw material. Tea had not realised the hopes formed of the restriction scheme, consumption having only to a limited extent increased. In the Straits the experience of the tin and rubber industries was similar to that of other industries for which restriction schemes had been created. There could, in his opinion, be no well based expectation of continued improvement so long as artificial restriction schemes provided temporary sheltering conditions.

In the circumstances there was cause for satisfaction in finding that the figures of their advances and bills showed increases respectively of £413,659 and £1,675,335 on the figures of the previous year.

They had reduced their holdings of securities from the high figure of £2,218,400 to £2,855,194. The shareholders would be pleased to know that their affiliate, the Allahabad Bank, had again had a successful year's trading. Their figures, which were attached to the report, showed that they had also seen an improvement in the demand in India for loans, cash credits and overdrafts.

The Chairman concluded by moving the adoption of the report and accounts.

Mr. E. F. Mackay seconded the resolution and it was carried unanimously.

FEATURESRUBBER PLAYS BIG PART

The quantity of rubber used in Ford car construction has virtually trebled in the last eight years an investigation just made by the Ford Motor Company reveals. The Model-T contained only 56 pounds of rubber, while the present Ford V-8 contains 164 pounds. To-day rubber is used for making steering wheels, batteries, switches, junction blocks, floor mats, motor supports, axle bumpers, sound deadeners, fan belts, radiator hose, insulating material, from fenders, door bumpers spring shackles, bushings, and top materials, as well as tyres and tubes.

All Ford rubber compositions are made to strict specifications and severely tested before use in car construction. Steering wheels must withstand drops from a height of six feet after twelve hours exposure to a temperature of 20 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. Windshield weatherstrips are exposed to the hot sun and high humidity on the roof of the branch plant of the Ford Motor Company at Jacksonville, Florida, to determine anti-checking and anti-splitting qualities. Rubber matting is given ingenious tests for resistance to abrasion and, in addition, running-board stocks are checked for their qualities in bonding to steel.

Rubber used for motor supports and axle bumpers is subjected to a distorting force far in excess of any that would be encountered while in use. Fan belts are severely tested for stretch, and improvements based on these laboratory findings have reduced the stretch in Ford fan belts to one-third of what it was, though the present belt is 50 per cent. longer than used on previous models.

Ford subjects the tyres it uses to the most exhaustive tests. In the laboratory, Ford developed machines test for carcass and bend fatigue and indicate tread wear resistance. Other machines check for resistance to bruising, breaking. Tyres are sent for testing to the River Rouge Plant from all company branches throughout the world. Regardless of where the tyre was manufactured, Ford maintains control.

To determine their stability at high speed, Ford tests tyres on the road.

FRED PERRY DICTATES TERMS TO BARON VON CRAMM

IN TENNIS FINAL AT WIMBLEDON

Briton's Historic Win In Singles Event

(By A Special Correspondent)

London, July 6.

Yesterday Perry won the Singles Championship for the second year in succession by defeating Baron von Cramm of Germany in three truly beautiful sets. He won by 6-2, 6-4, 6-4, and this is the first time in the history of the Wimbledon Championships that the same player has won the Men's Singles Championship two years running.

The Centre Court was packed for Friday's play, and there were sunshine and breeze to make the match all the more worth watching. By his play last year Fred Perry became a commanding personality in the history of Wimbledon, when he brought to an end the reign years of English Singles players, extending back over a quarter of a century. Now he becomes historic, the first player to have gone through from the first round and won on two successive occasions. There is all the difference in the world between a Doherty or a Tilden waiting in all the glamour of invincibility to meet his challenger, and the Champion of these days, who, step by step, has the strength of many nations eager to profit from the slightest faltering. Perry would appear to have reached the happy condition when he cannot play badly enough to lose, and to see him at his best is to feel that he will go on winning for ever.

The final match itself did not last long, and most of those present wished that von Cramm would win a set or two and take the fight the full distance. But Perry had to hold his championship in straight sets, as he won it; there has been no one this year to make him play five. It was Perry's business to make von Cramm play the match his way—any relinching, almost any point lost needlessly might have been disastrous had it given von Cramm command of the match, with his vigorous drives. So Perry pursued his way with smooth, very grim efficiency not looking as though he enjoyed the game particularly, but putting the utmost concentrated thought into every stroke.

The greatest problem for Perry was von Cramm's service, which is certainly the finest in Europe. The first half nearly the speed of Tilden's cannon-ball, and stored many an ace down the middle line; the second half twisted viciously to Perry's backhand—now being viciously Perry moved to it—and always von Cramm was springing surprises by changes of pace, spin and direction. In all other things Perry was the master and right from the beginning, he showed that a fast service had no terrors for him by winning von Cramm's love and proceeding himself to serve an ace. Later on a double-fault was not to disturb him, and though he might love 40 down, he could win a long game all the same, and so he led by five games to one before von Cramm knew much about it.

GERMAN CHANGES TACTICS

It was in the second and third sets that von Cramm looked more like the attacking player he is. Clearly, he could not beat Perry from the baseline, so he made up his mind to volley. But just as eventually Neatrom's treasure of silver was the end of him, so the volley was the end of von Cramm. Perry has a discouraging way with a volleyer; his speed of foot takes him to all but the most killing volleys, and in them he finds the angle and pace for the passing drive. What the match really amounted to was that Perry usually knew where von Cramm would send the ball, whereas von Cramm was never quite sure about Perry. What a lovely sight it was to have drives on the forehand so perfectly made, the ball skimming low and long all over the court until one or the other, usually Perry, ended the rally with a plunging drive across the forecourt a volley or a smash.

Semi-Final Tie In Lawn Bowls Competition

THREE SINGLES MATCHES

The first of the two semi-final matches in the Lawn Bowls Pairs Championship will be played off this afternoon when the Silvass will meet the Duncans.

The match is to be played on the Civil Service C. C. green. On present form the Silvass should qualify for the final but the father and son, who have been reproducing very good form this season, are capable of extending the Club de Recreio pair, although it is doubtful whether they can rise to the heights of a victory.

The Silvass qualified for the semi-final by beating A. M. Omar and K. M. Omar 28-14; L. J. Silva and H. A. Alves 20-14; L. Glendinning and W. Glendinning 22-15 and R. F. Luz and H. Beer 25-13, while the Duncans eliminated H. Overy and F. Goodwin 21-18; J. M. Purvis and H. H. Rose 22-10; and W. K. Way and A. S. Gomes 25-12. They received a bye in the first round.

Three of the quarter-final matches in the Singles Championship have also been arranged for this afternoon.

The following is the full programme for today:

PAIRS CHAMPIONSHIP
L. J. Silva and H. A. Alves v. K. M. Omar and A. M. Omar
(Civil Service C. C. Green)

SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP
T. Armstrong (Kowloon C. C. Green) v. H. Overy (Kowloon Dock Green)
G. N. Mitchell (Club de Recreio Green) v. J. V. Ramsay

BOBSLEIGH'S ILL-LUCK

Still Lame and May Miss St. Leger

Lord Derby's colt Bobsleigh, who broke down in his preparation for the Derby, is still lame and may not be able to run in the last of the season's classic races, the St. Leger, which will be run on September 11.

Bobsleigh was confidently expected to beat Bahram in the Derby. He is still in the veterinary surgeon's hands and has now been turned out to grass in one of his owner's paddocks for a fortnight.

EIGHT RUNS SHORT OF RECORD

SEVENTH WICKET PARTNERSHIP

RECENT CRICKET MATCH

C. R. Maxwell and S. C. Newman, when playing for Sir Julien Cahn's XI against Leicester at Nottingham recently scored 336 runs for the seventh wicket in 170 minutes.

The partnership failed, by eight runs, to beat that by "Ranji" and Newham of 33 years ago, when they made 344 runs for Sussex against Essex at Leyton. Ranji-sinhji made 230 and Newham 153.

For Cahn's XI in last month's match Maxwell hit 268 out of 390 in three hours and ten minutes. His total included four sixes and 44 fours—200 runs in boundary strokes and was chanceless.

His was the highest individual score of the season and Cahn's XI made the highest total. Newman scored 101 runs.

DOYLE'S-NEXT FIGHT

Against Braddock's Partner

New York, June 27.
Jack Doyle, the Irish heavy-weight boxer, who won his first fight in the United States on Tuesday is to meet Jack McCarthy, who acts as sparring-partner to J. J. Braddock, the world champion.

McCarthy is stated to be a rugged third-grade fighter. Doyle is in training at Kingston, and the bout will probably take place on July 9 at Boston.—Reuter.

Ernest Wright, of Queen's Park Rangers, was recently signed by Crewe.

LEGALITY OF T. T. RACES

MANX EVENTS ARE PROTECTED

VERDICT AGAINST FARMER

The holding of T.T. races on the Manx course is legal, the Attorney-General ruled in the Manx Court on June 27.

The question was raised the previous week in the defence of a farmer who was summoned for allowing sheep to stray on the course during practice. It was contended that the roads could only be closed for the racing of light locomotives, and a light locomotive, as defined by the 1933 Road Traffic Act, was a vehicle "which does not exceed eleven and a half tons, but does exceed seven and a half tons."

Under the Highway Board Act, 1927, power was given to close roads for practices for light locomotives under three and a half tons. In the 1933 Road Traffic Act, through an oversight, no power was given to close roads for motor-cycles or racing cars under three and a half tons.

The case was adjourned for the Attorney-General to deal with the matter, and on June 27 he stated that the definitions in the Road Traffic Act did not affect the Highway Board Act.

The Court accepted the Attorney-General's explanation, and the farmer was fined 10s.

New York Giants Fall From Grace

BASEBALL IN AMERICA

New York, July 22.

After having held a commanding lead for the major part of the season, the New York Giants' baseball outfit have fallen from grace and, following recent defeats, including the loss of a double header yesterday, they have now been displaced from the head of the National League Table by the Cardinals.

The Giants were today opposed to the St. Louis Cardinals, who have been second for the greater part of the season. The New York club scored only five runs against their opponents' eight and are now two games behind.

The Cubs improved their position yesterday at the expense of the Giants but today they again slipped back as a result of their defeat by the Brooklyn Dodgers in a match that went to eleven innings and produced no less than 27 runs altogether. Three home runs were scored by each side.

The first of the series of matches between the New York Yankees and the Detroit Tigers, the two leading teams of the American League, was postponed on account of the weather conditions.

Results of today's matches follow:

NATIONAL LEAGUE

	R.	H.	E.
Philadelphia	4	9	1
Pittsburgh	5	7	1
New York	5	11	1
St. Louis	8	16	1

(Danning scored a home run for the Giants).

Brooklyn..... 14 22 2
Chicago..... 12 20 3
(Pheps, Cuccinello and Taylor scored home runs for the Dodgers and Galen, Chuck Klein and Cavarretta scored for the Cubs. There were eleven innings).

Boston	4	10	0

AMERICAN LEAGUE

	R.	H.	E.
Philadelphia	3	9	2

(Simmonds scored a home run for the White Sox and Johnson and Higgins for the Athletics).

St. Louis	1	7	0

(Wes Farrell scored a home run for the Red Sox).

Cleveland	4	14	1
Washington	4	8	1

TOURING BASEBALL TEAM BACK

JAPANESE SIDE IN U. S.

PLAYER REMAINS BEHIND

Yokohama, July 16.
Japan's first professional baseball team returned from an invasion of America to-day, proudly displaying their record of 75 victories, 34 defeats, and one tied game in 110 encounters on the Pacific Coast of the United States and Canada.

The aggregation, dubbed the Tokyo Giants while on their tour, returned seventeen strong instead of the eighteen members it comprised when it left Japan in February. Missing was Fumino Horio, star outfielder, who was brought by the Sacramento team of the Pacific Coast League. Horio was born in Hawaii and is an American citizen.—Rengo.

BRADDOCK FOR ENGLAND

CHAMPION PLANS VISIT

EXHIBITIONS TO BE GIVEN

London, July 7.

James J. Braddock, the new heavy-weight champion of the world, is to visit England and Ireland, where he will give a series of exhibitions. He will sail in August.

Joe Gould, Braddock's manager, stated that he had received 10 transatlantic calls from Dublin, London and Manchester. That from Manchester was from Braddock's father.

Gould is not accepting any of the proposals for Braddock to fight for his title for the time being. He has received many offers from all over the world.

Gould announced that he was not in the least interested in a fight at the present between Braddock and Schmeling.

After Baer's defeat his hands were examined by X-ray and it was shown that there were two fractures of small bones of the right hand and a chip fracture of the left hand.

The right hand had a swelling the size of a marble near the wrist joint.

Max Baer's family, although downhearted over his defeat, confidently predict that Max will win back the title or else his younger brother, Buddy, who has a string of k.o. victories to his credit, will do the job.

DIFFERENT TYPES

Max Baer, film star and playboy of the ring; laughed and clowning his way lightly to the heavy-weight crown, which he held for just a year.

Braddock, known as the "Jersey Thunderbolt," had to surmount numerous obstacles in his climb to the top of the fistie ladder.

Braddock was considered the best long shot challenger for 43 years. He was superbly trained and confident that he had the stamina to last the full distance.

Baer has been a glamorous, courageous, mischievous, temperamental and emotional figure. He likes going to night clubs, spends money like water, hates training, and going to bed early and doing what he is told. He is as strong as the oxen he often used to pole-axe and intersperses his clowning in the ring with terrific punches.

Braddock, on the other hand, is almost the complete antithesis of the ex-champion. Married and the father of three children, he is a boxer to whom fighting is a business and a vocation. He likes to fight, is devoted to his family, has known the pinch of hard times and has had an in-and-out career in the ring. He has had more ups and downs in the last seven years than the average men achieves in a lifetime.

Only a few months ago he was drawing the equivalent to the English dote, and was only allowed to keep his rooms because the landlord was an ardent boxing fan.

He has worked as a longshoreman at the docks for a mere pittance. The word quit is not in his vocabulary and, when asked his opinion about the outcome of the fight, he would reply as likely as not, "I'll do my damndest."

HEDLEY VERITY

Hedley Verity's Fifth Successive Year

London, June 28.

Hedley Verity, the Yorkshire and England left-arm bowler, yesterday took his hundredth wicket of the season. He is the first bowler of the summer to do so.

Before the present series of matches began, Verity and Freeman, of Kent, were level with 96 wickets each. Kent, however, are not playing until Saturday. Verity took the four wickets he required in Glamorgan's first innings at Bradford.

He has now taken 100 or more wickets in five consecutive seasons. His totals are:

1932	146
1934	100

Being mainly a leg-break bowler, he owes very little to the new L.b.w. rule, as he has taken only three wickets by this means.

TENNIS FIXTURES FOR TO-DAY

"A" DIVISION MATCHES

CHINESE TO MEET CRAIGENGOWER

The recently revised Lawn Tennis League fixtures come into force to-day when "A" Division matches are to be played.

The Chinese R. C. "A" players are due to meet the Craigengower C. C., who lost their first match of the season last week when they went down to the Kowloon C. C. by the odd set. The Chinese have not yet been beaten and should win to-day at Causeway Bay.

The full programme of matches for this afternoon is as follows:

Chinese "A" v. Craigengower
Chinese "B" v. Chinese "B"
U. S. R. C. v. Indian R. C.
Hongkong C. C. v. Kowloon C. C.

Len Harvey and Eddie Phillips are to meet in an eliminating contest for the heavy-weight championship, the winner (says the Boxing Board) to meet the title-holder, Jack Petersen.

FRED PERRY BEATS VON CRAMM

In Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Singles Final

Von Cramm kept on fighting all the way but Perry made everything of his forehand drive, taken so beautifully on the run in the next game, and he was Champion again with warm cheers to greet him.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of Perry's play is his stamina. He appears to be able to play lawn tennis all over the world, month after month, year after year, without going stale. Von Cramm is one of the most courteous of sportsmen; he comes of a family which has many ties with this country, for his father and one of his brothers were up at Balliol College, Oxford. Perry, in the Tilden tradition, would not give his autograph before the match, but stole away down a side court, in company with Austin, not wanting to speak or be spoken to.

It was very disappointing news, yesterday, that Dorothy Round, Gt. Britain's No. 1 women player, has dropped out of the British Wightman Cup Team to meet U.S.A. next month. Miss Round says she needs a rest, as the injury to her right leg is still worrying her, and she has been playing tennis without a break for two years and thinks she may be getting a little stale.

THIRD DAY'S RESULTS

The following are the results of the third day's matches at Wimbledon:

MEN'S SINGLES

Second Round: H. W. Austin beat J. Haines (Norway), 6-2, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2; P. Kukuljovic (Yugoslavia) beat K. Lund (Germany), 6-4, 6-3, 6-4; D. McNeill beat A. Del Bono (Italy), 6-1, 6-2, 6-0; E. DAVIS CUP TENNIS CONTEST

GERMANY WINS SINGLES

FIRST TWO GAMES SHARED

London, July 22. In the Davis Cup Competition at Wimbledon to-day Gottfried von Cramm (Germany), beat Allison (United States), 8-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Von Cramm was driving with magnificent precision to within a few inches of the lines and was masterly both in his splendid service and glorious all-round hitting of marvellously angled shots.

Von Cramm served many backhand winners in the first set while Allison repeatedly brought off spectacular volleying shots.

Allison twice saved set points but in the tenth game tragically served three double faults.

In the fourteenth game von Cramm gave a perfect back-of-the-court display.

The second set Allison was inclined to storm the net and was repeatedly forced into errors. Allison recovered in the third set and led 3-2, but von Cramm, was favoured by numerous lucky net-cordors.

Both were giving a display of fierce all-round hitting with great volleying and counterpassing shots.

Von Cramm, with a brilliant burst of play finished the match on his service with a love game.—Reuter.

MILLER WINS AGAIN

TERRIFIC BLOWS FOR WATSON BOXING BOUT IN ENGLAND

Liverpool, June 27. Freddie Miller, the American holder of the world feather-weight championship, put up a brilliant display at the Liverpool football ground to-night when he outpointed Tommy Watson of Newcastle, a contender for the British light-weight title, over ten rounds.

Miller was conceding several pounds but his punching was terrific and four times Watson tottered to the floor.

The gameness and spirit of Watson enabled him to fight back to such good purpose after the half-way stage that many people sympathised with him, and when Miller's hand was raised there were many shouts of disapproval.

But Miller won by a clear margin.

There was a sensation in the second round, when Miller dropped

NINE-SET VICTORY AT TENNIS

KOWLOON C. C. TEAMS CLASH

MIXED DOUBLES LEAGUE

The Kowloon Cricket Club's two teams met yesterday afternoon in a League match in the mixed doubles Division, the game resulting in an overwhelming victory for the "A" team over the "B" team by nine sets to nil.

Scores: E. C. Fincher and Miss O. Datzel ("A") beat A. W. Ramsey and Mrs. M. White 7-5; beat A. L. Oppenheim and Mrs. Knight 6-3; beat O. Hesse and Mrs. Kirby 7-5.

E. F. Fincher and Miss M. Griffith ("A") beat Ramsey and Mrs. White 6-3; beat Oppenheim and Mrs. Knight 6-2; beat Hesse and Mrs. Kirby 6-2.

A. E. P. Guest and Miss A. Mackenzie ("A") beat Ramsey and Mrs. White 6-3; beat Oppenheim and Mrs. Knight 6-2; beat Hesse and Mrs. Kirby 6-4.

"B" DIVISION MATCH

A postponed "B" Division fixture between the Chinese Recreation Club and the Club de Recolet was played off yesterday on the former's courts, Causeway Bay, and ended in a win for the home team by seven sets to two.

Y. W. Lee and K. C. Ng were the outstanding pair for the winners, annexing all three sets. They were, however, given a hard fight by A. E. Xavier and A. M. Rodrigues, who took them to ten games before the Chinese won. Scores:

Y. W. Lee and K. C. Ng (Chinese R. C.) beat A. E. Xavier and A. M. Rodrigues 6-4; beat B. Gosano and L. F. V. Ribeiro 6-1; beat L. Carvalho and M. Oliveira 6-2.

Y. P. Tsui and P. F. Choy (Chinese R. C.) beat Xavier and Rodrigues 7-5; beat Gosano and Ribeiro 6-2; lost to Carvalho and Oliveira 4-6.

S. W. Wong and F. K. Lau (Chinese R. C.) lost to Xavier and Rodrigues 3-6; beat Gosano and Ribeiro 6-2; beat Carvalho and Oliveira 7-5. to the floor, but the punch which did it landed below the line.

HURRICANE HITTING

Miller came out like a hurricane in the third round and quick double punches sent Watson down twice.

In the fourth Miller slipped, but Watson sportingly held off only to find the American in his best punching mood and a right to the jaw sent Watson down for nine.

A shock punch with the right followed by two quick lefts put Watson down for eight in the next round, but Watson improved and boxed exceptionally well.

In the last round Miller came again and terrific punches had the Englishman staggering about the ring.

CHAPTER XXVIII

Katharine threw wide the casement window, looking down at the garden below. The long shadows of morning lay everywhere, the borders were starred with dewy drops. Yesterday, yesterday, she said to herself, had been her wedding day.

To-day she and Michael would acknowledge their marriage before all the world. She had decided that in the still watches of the night. There was to be no more waiting, no more presence or secrecy. By this time Sally Moon would have heard the news, no doubt, from Michael's own lips. Sally would be angry—furious—angry—but that would pass. Pride would come to her rescue. She could make it appear that she had discarded Michael.

At the thought of him, Katharine's eyes darkened suddenly. She drew a long breath. She was Michael's wife. The miracle had happened yesterday.

At any moment now he would telephone her. The bell would ring and before one of the maids could answer it Katharine herself would do so.

His voice would sound in her ears. That deep, drawing, wholly delightful voice of Michael's.

Katharine bathed and dressed, still wrapped in the dream. Her green linen frock and the brown and white shoes with the buckskin fringes and a string of dull white beads that looked creamy against her sunburn.

But Michael didn't call. Breakfast passed. Bertine said something about missing the rolls for lunch for the day before, and Katharine came out of her trance to stare at her step-mother as at a perfect stranger.

"What did you say, Bertine?"

"I said that Cook was furious when the rolls didn't arrive yesterday. We waited and waited, Victor," said Bertine, with that infuriating smile of hers, "and this girl never showed up. Nora Willis was here and there wasn't a thing but whole wheat bread in the house. You know Nora hates it."

This went on for some time. Katharine, breaking bits of toast and arranging them in a geometrical pattern on the pink Spode plate, paid little heed. Bertine was trying to irritate her, trying to goad her into some sort of explanation. But this particular morning her step-mother's jibes simply could not reach Katharine.

Her father granted over his newspaper which he had folded back to the financial page. The telephone rang in the study. Katharine could hear the jangling of the bell and every nerve in her taut body responded to the summons. Any moment now Ellen would call her.

But it was only William Willis, making a golf engagement with her father.

Her heart raced and slowed again. Not for her.

The morning droned past. Michael must be angry with her—she must have been too repulsive in her manner when he called her last night. Oh, he'd have to learn to understand her better—he'd have to see it meant nothing when she was cool and standoffish. She had crawled into her shell for so many years that it was hard, all at once, to break the habit. And she loved him so terribly!

At last, unable to bear the silence further, she got into the car and drove over to the riding school. Tips was in the yard, feeding some chickens that struffed about on the bare earth. He looked up expectantly.

"No'm, Mister Michael, he ain't come back, m's." Tips' white teeth showed. "Pa, he thinks it's mighty funny. He went off last night soon after those men left."

"Went off?" Katharine stared at him. "Yes'm. He says he's going to New York, he says he's going to lock up."

This morning when I go in to call him for breakfast, sure enough, he ain't been back."

"Well, thank you very much, Tips. No, I won't make an appointment to ride just now."

Katharine went back to the car. Automatically her fingers turned the ignition key. She started the motor, drove off almost blindly.

Michael had gone away! He hadn't let her know. What in heaven's name did this mean?

Had he told her the truth when he said those men could not possibly bring evil tidings to him, that his state was clear? She would have staked her life yesterday upon his honesty, but this new development brought terror to her soul.

What was she to do? There was no one she could tell, no one she could turn to now.

Or was there?

Violet Mersey's wise, kind, gentle face came to Katharine's mind. In spite of her instinctive distrust, her impulsiveness to stand upon her own feet, she was drawn irresistibly to this new friend.

Violet was in a basket chair under the apple trees, knitting a pink sweater for Sybil. "How nice to see you! We've been missing you." The two keen perceptions told her something was wrong. "My dear, what's up? Can I help?"

Katharine sat down and the whole story poured from her lips. She held nothing back. Violet Mersey did not interrupt once, but her dark eyes reflected a boundless sympathy.

"What am I to do?" Katharine finished dully. "I must have been mad yesterday. He's run away now. Evidently it was all a horrible joke to him."

Shocked by the other's suffering, the older woman sought for words to comfort her. "You couldn't be so wrong in trusting him. He has a good face. I liked him from the start."

The girl lifted her head. "You did? Really and truly?" "He's not bad," Violet Mersey assured her. "There's some mystery here. It can probably be cleared up. Wait and see."

"If my father finds out—or Bertine—" Katharine went on, "I might as well be dead."

"Don't talk like that. Do you suppose," ventured Mrs. Mersey, "that neither one of them—your father or step-mother—has a single folly with which to reproach themselves?"

"I don't know. Probably not." "Nonsense," said Violet briskly. "Anyhow, you're not to worry about them. Brace up, child. The world hasn't come to an end. I know it looks frightful to you, but probably in a week from now the whole affair will be straightened out."

"You think so?"

"I really do."

But after the girl had gone away Violet Mersey was not so certain. What a strange tangle of circumstances it was! Certainly, on the face of it, one wouldn't say that a young man who was engaged to one girl and married to another and who, further, disappeared on the night following the ceremony, sounded particularly honourable. Especially since two detectives had visited him just an hour or two before his departure.

In a hospital ward in the city, high above the turgid stream that was the East River, Michael Heathcote lay. He tossed and turned on his narrow bed, and occasionally muttered an incoherent word or two.

Mrs. Smithers, the nurse on duty in the ward, glanced at him interestedly as she made an entry in his chart.

"Good-looking fellow," she said to the supervisor who was a friend of hers. "It's too bad."

A newspaper reporter whose "beat" included this particular hospital wrote a brief paragraph about a hatless young man "possibly 27 years old" who had been injured in a taxicab accident at Park Avenue and 48th Street. The city editor ran a blue pencil through a good many items that night. So the story of Michael's adventures appeared only in the early editions of the newspaper.

The late edition, which came to the Stryker table at Innisbrook, did not contain this account. Katharine, distraught as she was, searched the papers for mention of accidents, sinners, suggested that some such happening might explain Michael's silence. She did not really believe in the possibility. By this time she was fairly well convinced that Michael Heathcote had played a cruel joke on the girl who had married him.

So the day passed, and the mystery deepened. And in Katharine's sick heart hope fluttered and died.

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

Cary Grant, who was one of the stars of "The Eagle and The Hawk," returns again to a role in an exciting film, "Wings in the Dark." The picture, starring Grant with Myrna Loy, comes to the Alhambra Theatre on Saturday. Although "The Eagle and The Hawk" was a picture of air aviation, "Wings in the Dark" is devoted to depicting the thrills and romance in the development of peace-time aviation. Grant plays the role of a scientific explorer of the air, a man who strives to make aviation safe by perfecting blind-flying. When he is blinded in an accident, Myrna Loy, the girl who loves him, helps him to carry on his work with money she earns in spectacular stunt flying. Grant learns how she has been helping him; he leaves her, rather than accept charity. But fate intervenes and Grant, in a gripping dramatic climax, goes on a flight that saves Miss Loy's life and unites the lovers. Directed by James Flood, the picture features Roscoe Karns, Hobart Cavanaugh and Dean Jagger in the principal featured roles.

"The Mystery of Edwin Drood"

The largest motion picture set since the making of the famous "Hunchback of Notre Dame" was built at Universal studios for the filming of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," the sensational and spine-tingling mystery drama which comes to the King's Theatre on Friday with Claude Rains in the starring role, supported by a brilliant cast. An entire English village of the Victorian period has been built, streets, squares, a beautiful cathedral, all absolutely authentic as to every particular were constructed, and when one stepped into the village streets he felt as though he had been transported to another country. The furnishing of the interior settings for this picture, which is laid in the period of 1864, required months of research and search for the proper furnishings. A brilliant supporting cast is seen with Claude Rains in the film. Among the featured players are Douglas Montgomery, Heather Angel, David Manners, Valerie Hobson, Francis L. Sullivan, Forrester Harvey, E. E. Clive, Walter Kingsford and many others. Stuart Walker directed.

"The Winning Ticket"

A new laugh-making combination, in the persons of Leo Carrillo and Louise Fazenda, presenting an Italian barber and his Irish wife, added and abetted by Ted Healy. This unusual team makes its debut in "The Winning Ticket" showing at the Oriental Theatre to-morrow and Thursday, as a hilarious story of the Irish Sweepstakes and the trials and tribulations in a mixed-nationalities family over the loss of a winning ticket. Intimate human touches of home life and a romantic love story are woven into the structure of hilarious comedy. A barbers' picnic, comical family arguments in mixed languages, a screamingly funny episode in a jail and other highlights embellish the story.

"Carnival"

A human, lovable story of four grand characters, a spell-binding barker, a swell girl, an "Elegant" baby and the inimitable "beschrözzel" Durante runs through the picture scheduled as the next change at the Queen's Theatre. It is "Carnival," a hilarious picture featuring Les Tracy, Sally Eilers, Jimmy Durante and Baby Dickie Walters. You'll smile at their hilarious adventures, you'll sigh at their heartbreak romance with them, you'll love them. Here is a real hit. And a new star sparkles in the picture, Dickie Walters, the 2½ year old child who makes his screen debut in this picture and acts up to the adult performers with disarming charm. He'll win the hearts of all who see him. "Carnival" is written by Robert Riskin and is bound to find favour with all who see it. With a cast including Tracy, fast-talking puppeteer owner of a carnival show, Jimmy Durante and Sally Eilers, attractive assistant to Tracy, the story is told in a direct and beautiful manner containing romance and thrills.

"The Right to Live"

"The Right to Live" Warner Bros. dynamic drama of triangular love under the most unusual circumstances, comes to the Alhambra Theatre next week. It is the story of two brothers who love the same woman who is the wife of one. The husband, crippled for life by an airplane crash, asks his brother to escort his wife about a sacrifice that he will not be deprived of all the joys of life. Love springs up between these two young people from the constant contact, and although they fight against it, nature is too strong for them. The husband, his eyes opened to the situation, makes a sacrifice that is as startling as it is dramatic. Other intense scenes occur between the two lovers, torn between the call of young love and the stern demands of duty, and the final great climax where the wife is accused of the murder of her husband in order to elope with the brother. There is a talented all-star cast, including Josephine Hutchinson, who made her screen bow recently in "Happiness Ahead" after a sensational career with Eva La Galienne at the Civic Repertory Theatre, George Brent, Colin Clive, Peggy Wood, of musical comedy fame, Henrietta Crossman, C. Aubrey Smith, Leo G. Carroll and Phyllis Coghlan.

"Woman in the Dark"

Does a woman who owes her attempt at success to a man have a right to repudiate her obligations to him? Is she entitled to freedom from a man who she eventually realises she doesn't love? This situation, cleverly conceived and developed by Basil Hammett, author of "The Thin Man," forms one of the all-absorbing highlights in his latest drama of "dangerous romance," "Woman in the Dark," which is now showing at the King's Theatre.

Louise Loring, a beautiful singer, has left financial backing from Billy Robson, a successful man-about-town. After her concert tour fails financially, Robson tells her that he regards the money he gave her not as a loan but as an "investment." For a time she dodges his demands, but as Robson gradually becomes more and more dictatorial to her, she decides to leave him for good. Robson, of course, is equally determined to prevent her from going. When she takes refuge with Bradley, an ex-convict, Robson trumps up charges to have the both arrested. In an effort to rid herself of Robson and an agreement she no longer wishes to keep, Louise and Bradley are involved in an exciting chain of events that build rapidly to a typical Hammett denouement. Fay Wray is beautiful and appealing as Louise Loring and Ralph Bellamy portrays the ex-convict vainly trying to live down his past. Melvyn Douglas, stage and screen star, is the polished, relentless Robson, and Roscoe Ates, as Bradley's pal, brings laughs with his characterization. The cast is further enhanced by Granville Bates, Ruth Gillette, and Nell O'Day.

"Vagabond Lady"

A record number of sets mark "Vagabond Lady," the Hal Roach-M-G-M feature now playing at the Queen's Theatre as one of the most costly and elaborate screen comedies to emanate from the film capital for some time. With such a variety of locales as a waterfront, a department store, the interior of a palatial home, a circus midway, the deck of a sailing ship and more than a score of other backgrounds, the production, in its swiftly changing scenes, called forth the skill of a staff of twenty expert technicians and a crew of five hundred artisans. Properties used in dressing this large group of settings represented a small fortune, and included valuable furnishings and equipment besides such unusual things as a crate of live lobsters, paintings of circus freaks, bales of vegetables, and sundry other strange objects. THE ROMANCE SAILS

HONGKONG CRAFT LEAVES JAPAN FOR AMERICA

Word has been received at the local office of the C.P.R. to the effect that the yacht Romance sailed from Yokohama on Saturday afternoon bound for Vancouver.

The Romance, which was built in Hongkong for Captain E. P. Green, left here about six weeks ago for Yokohama with the Captain, who is a retired C.P.R. commander, his son Phillip, and a Chinese sailor aboard.

Some trouble was experienced in Yokohama when the Chinese disappeared, but the information received in Hongkong does not state whether he was located before sailing.

has any feature comedy called for such lavish wardrobe for its principal players as does this picture. The clothes worn by Evelyn Venable, the leading lady, represent the last word in dress creations while those that attire the male principals are equally smart and exclusive. It is not such a fashion display as is seen in this picture is permitted in a light comedy but in this case it is made possible because the story revolves round the adventures of a wealthy and aristocratic family of modern times. Sam Taylor directed and Robert Young is featured as well as many others of note including Evelyn Venable, who is seen as his leading lady.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

The holding of certain cards sometimes forces us to open a doubleton. The doubleton lead in to-day's hand is the only one that has a chance of defeating the declarer's contract, but it takes accurate card reading on the part of the partner to defeat the hand, and likewise on the part of the declarer to make his contract if opponents slip.

NORTH		EAST
S-A-5-5	H-2-7-5	S-10-6	H-4-1
D-9-7-4	H-3-9-3	D-10-10	7-6-4
D-K-8-3	2	C-8-10	6
C-1-7	SOUTH-DEALER	C-9-4

The Bidding

At auction South, the dealer, would buy the contract for one spade, while at contract South opens the bidding with one spade. North goes to two spades, showing normal support in trump, at least one and one-half tricks, and requests partner to keep the bidding open. This gives partner a chance to show another suit or to get into three no trump before the contract gets too high. South takes the declaration to three spades, showing a five-card spade suit and just about a minimum original bid. North carries the declaration to four spades, which closes the contracting.

The Play

West's hand is rather difficult to open against a suit declaration. Trumps are a bad lead as it would be leading into the declarer's strength. He hates to surrender his ace of hearts so early in the game. Leading away from the king of diamonds with the bidding as it was might lead into the ace queen, so finally the doubleton club is selected by West for an opening and the jack is led. Dummy plays the deuce.

Before playing to this trick, East should endeavour to read his partner's hand. Holding the ten of clubs, he knows partner has not led from the jack, ten, nine or the ace, jack, ten, therefore the club lead is either a singleton or a doubleton. If it is a doubleton why has partner opened it in preference to his long suit? He might be holding the ace of hearts and the king of diamonds four times not wanting to open either one, and therefore the doubleton was selected.

If East carelessly plays the six spot, the declarer also will rest the same way and allow West to hold the trick with his jack. There is nothing that West can now do to defeat the declarer's contract as two losing hearts can be stuffed on the long clubs in dummy and the declarer need lose only one club, one heart and one diamond.

The real play for East to make is to cover his partner's jack with the queen. This will force the declarer's ace and East will still have clubs stopped with the ten spot. If the declarer allows the queen to hold, the queen of hearts will be led by East, which will stop game. If the declarer wins the trick with the ace of clubs, he later will be forced to lose one club and three hearts, which will defeat his contract.

ANGLO-FRENCH ANTI-WAR ALIGNMENT LIKELY

DEFEND LEAGUE COVENANT

BRITISH ATTITUDE CRYSTALLISING

MAY INFLUENCE GENEVA POLICY PROFOUNDLY

London, July 23.

Hope of a French alignment with Great Britain upon the dangerous Abyssinian issue is becoming stronger. For, in the event of failure to effect a compromise between Italy and Ethiopia, Ministers are confident that when the League Council meets France will see the danger to the sanctity of European treaties should the present East African position be allowed to drift into war.

In the meantime, the British attitude crystallises into the view that if all chance of collective action evaporates, Britain, at Geneva, must face the broad issue of refusing to limit discussions to the Uval incident and state openly that the Empire is prepared to fulfil its obligations under the League Covenant if others do the same.

It has been indicated previously that Britain's attitude will have a strong influence upon the policy of the League, and may go so far as to determine it.—Reuter.

FEAR OF CLASH

London, July 22.

It is reliably reported that at session of the Cabinet Council here to-night fears were expressed that Signor Mussolini's colonial aspirations would in all probability extend beyond Ethiopia, and lead to direct conflict with the British.

It was therefore considered urgent that the country seek means for settling the present dispute and that the League of Nations be urged to take action. Mr. Anthony Eden, Britain's Minister for League Affairs, would attend the League Council meeting later in the month, at which the Italo-Abyssinian dispute will be reviewed and a compromise sought, armed with full authority, declares the United Press.

Incidentally, the League of Nations is probably on its "last trial," declared Mr. Rhyas Davies, Labour member, presiding at a dinner given by a group of members of the House of Commons.

BRITISH GENERAL TO FORM BRIGADE

Durban, July 22.

Brigadier-General J. R. Royston, C.M.G., D.S.O., 75-year-old veteran of the South African War, is offering his services to the Emperor of Abyssinia.

He proposes to raise a brigade of volunteers to participate in "this unjust war."—Reuter.

BRITISH STAND

Paris, July 22.

The British Ambassador to-day acquainted M. Laval, the French Prime Minister, with the outcome of the British Cabinet meeting which considered the Italo-Abyssinian dispute to-day.

It is reported that Great Britain favoured the whole problem being threshed out before the League of Nations Council. Such an attitude places France in a quandary, as she is equally desirous of maintaining agreement with both London and Rome, and Italy is very much opposed to full discussion of the Abyssinian affair at Geneva.—Reuter.

No Embargo On Arms To Abyssinians

London, July 22.

Abyssinia was under discussion at the extra pre-adjournment Cabinet meeting to-day.

It is believed that the Government has decided not to place any embargo on the export of arms either to Italy or to Abyssinia as no steps for the control of armaments exports to these two countries have been taken by any other nation.

Hitherto application for permission to export arms in connection with the Abyssinian dispute have been held under consideration.

GRIM FLOOD SITUATION

EFFORT TO RELIEVE SUFFERING

Changsha, July 22.

Mr. Hsu Shih-ying, Chairman of the National Famine Relief Commission, arrived here from Hankow by a special train at noon to-day.

He was greeted at the station by General Ho Chien, Chairman of the Hunan Provincial Government, and other leading officials of the provincial government.

Mr. Hsu stated that the flood conditions in the various provinces he had inspected presented a grim picture. In view of the sufferings of the flood refugees immediate relief should be given.—Central News.

WINTER RELIEF

Nanking, July 22.

In view of the fact that the present flood situation along the Yangtze and Yellow Rivers will inevitably affect the harvest this year the Ministry of Industry has decided to make a thorough investigation of farm lands flooded and damage done to them. It is understood that upon the findings of the investigation the Ministry of Industry will devise measures for winter relief.—Central News.

The foreign exchange market was dead at 10.45 a.m. The Gold Bar Exchange is very active.

U. S. dollars 38.7/8, Sterling 1/6.13/16, Gold Bars $366.00.

The market was dead at the close of the morning session. The Gold Bar Exchange continued very active.

U. S. dollars 38.7/8, Sterling 1/6.13/16, Gold Bars $370.00.—United Press.

IMPERIAL AIRWAYS RECORD

London, July 22.

In the House of Commons, the Under-Secretary for Air, Sir Philip Sassoon, stated that he was unable to give figures in respect of other services, but in the case of the Imperial Airways there were no fatal accidents in 1934.

TIN PRICE SOARS IN LONDON

NO SUPPLIES ON HAND

London, July 22.

An extraordinary position, with no tin on offer for cash sales, was disclosed in the London tin market to-day, not even when the price advanced $9 to $245 per ton.

This price is the highest for the past seven years and is $37 per ton higher than in February.

ULTIMATUM SENT TO MONGOLIA

Japanese Demanding Undertaking

Moscow, July 23.

Official dispatches from Unga state that the representative of Japan's Kwantung Army has issued an ultimatum to Mongolia threatening "decisive" military action unless the Japanese demands, made on July 4, are met immediately.

The Japanese demands were made following the reports of continued incursions by Mongolian raiders and clashes between Japanese and Mongolian patrols.

The demands were designed to define the frontiers finally and to obtain an undertaking from Mongolia that they should be respected.—United Press.

The situation was later explained as being due to "a technical hitch" on the part of the International Tin Control Committee, and later the metal was quoted at $237 per ton. Cash figures are higher than the price for delivery three months hence.

It is known that the Control Committee holds 1,400 tons in the United Kingdom.—Reuter.

Free State Mobilising All Forces

SERIOUS RIOTING SPREADING

BELFAST'S CASUALTIES

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 23, 8.15 a.m.)

Dublin, July 23.

Conflict, amounting almost to a threat of civil war, has developed in Ireland as a result of the clashes between Loyalist and Republican forces in Belfast following the ceremonies commemorating the Battle of the Boyne.

The feeling is very strong and has spread to the South. There has been serious rioting in Dublin and elsewhere throughout the Free State.

All available police and troops have been mobilised in the Free State to deal with the emergency.

The trouble, which has already claimed ten lives in Belfast, and resulted in the wounding of scores, commenced on the Battle of the Boyne anniversary when hidden marksmen fired on a Loyalist parade. Later, during the funeral of the young men killed in this street clash, snipers again opened fire. Troops were called out on both occasions and shots were fired into the crowds in order to disperse them.

Since then feeling has become increasingly strong. There have been demonstrations and disorders throughout the country, but the situation is now most tense in the Free State, where the anti-De Valera faction is becoming threatening.—United Press.

TENSION IN LAHORE

TEN KILLED IN RIOTING

London, July 22.

The disturbances at Lahore, occasioned by dispute between Sikh and Mohammedan communities regarding the ownership of a temple, were the subject of a House of Commons question to-day in reply to which the Under-Secretary for India, Mr. Butler, stated that fresh trouble had broken out during the week-end.

Large crowds of Muslims, assembled with the object of proceeding to the Shohidganj Gurdwara, had assumed a violent attitude towards the police, and, despite charges by police and mounted police, they refused to disperse. Firing became necessary on two occasions on Saturday, after all other efforts to disperse the crowds had failed, and after a warning had been issued by the magistrates, and again on three occasions on Sunday.

In all, twenty-three rounds were fired and the number killed is reported not to exceed ten. He added it was under control and responsible Muslims were doing their best to persuade their co-religionists to desist from defiance of the law.

Express messages from Lahore indicate that peace efforts are continuing and that the situation is well in hand.—British Wireless.

AVOIDED DANGEROUS ARMAMENTS RACE

London, July 22.

The Anglo-German naval agreement was severely criticised by speakers of all parties in the House of Commons to-day. The Labour member, Mr. George Hall, complained of the Government's inconsistency for condemning Germany for repudiating the armaments provisions of the Treaty of Versailles and, in the next breath, concluding an agreement for the increase of German naval strength which in itself was a violation of treaties to which Britain was a signatory.

Vice-Admiral G. Campbell, V.C., Nationalist member and famous commander of "Q" boats in the War, who was given credit for breaking the German submarine blockade effectively and finally, said the agreement gave Germany a brand new navy whereas much of the British tonnage was verging on the obsolete.

Mr. David Lloyd George, former Liberal Prime Minister, expressed dismay at the light-hearted way the Government not merely condoned the number of submarines at present existing in Germany's yards, but arranged for the building of many more.

SILVER MARKET DANGERS

PRECAUTION URGED BY BANK

BROKERS' REACTION

Shanghai, July 23.

Exchanges opened quiet with the undertone rather easy owing to private reports from London to the effect that the margin on silver contracts will be increased to 20 per cent. This is considered a bearish factor for silver.—Reuter.

BANK WARNS BROKERS

Shanghai, July 23.

Additional cables received here from London this morning state that "recent events on the Silver Market have brought to light the very vulnerable position of the market if America should unexpectedly vary her silver policy."

The Bank of England has accordingly warned brokers to make their position as safe as possible in view of the still very large open account.

These developments had the effect of increasing the margin on silver contracts to 20 per cent.—Reuter.

STRONG SUPPORT

Washington, July 22.

Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma to-day said that the signatures to the letter asking President Roosevelt to speed up the action on the United States silver policy represented "both parties, and also farmers, industrialists, workers, members of the silver bloc in Congress and all sections of the country."

Senator Thomas said that the letter was "fundamentally an approval of the President's silver purchases to date but also an announcement that he should continue to strive enthusiastically to reach the full objectives of the silver Act."

The text of the signatures is not yet published.—United Press.

Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, First Lord of the Admiralty, pointed out that the principle of naval ratios had to a large extent to be abandoned because some countries thought it wounding to their national pride to accept inferior strength.

"The principle on which we are now acting is to ask each country to state what navy it would have in 1942," said Sir Bolton, the object being to endeavour to seek an equitable relative strength for all sea powers.

DANGER AVOIDED

Rebuffing criticism of Britain's unilateral action in arranging the Anglo-German naval pact, Sir Bolton said that the multilateralism of the present agreements and treaties caused the German demand for a new navy of a total strength of 650,000, instead of 300,000. The same thing had occurred with regard to air armaments.

"We could not afford to have the same sort of thing happen to naval armaments," he declared, and was echoed by loud ministerial cheers.

The abolition of submarines stood in the forefront of Britain's naval policy, said Sir Bolton. "We welcome German co-operation and hope that with it we shall have a better chance of successfully pursuing our aims at the coming general naval conference."

—Reuter Special.

THE CRITICISMS

London, July 22.

In a debate on the Admiralty vote in the House of Commons, Opposition speakers criticised the recent Anglo-German Naval Agreement as not contributing to disarmament, failing to provide for limitation of tonnage and assuring German supremacy in the Baltic.

Mr. George Hall (Labour) feared a fresh impetus to naval building and observed that among the nations affected by the Washington and London Naval Treaties seven hundred ships would be due for replacement between 1936 and 1942, and the estimated total cost of replacement £200,000,000.

Mr. Lloyd George expressed surprise at the concession to Germany of a large number of submarines.

The First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, said after December, 1936, all existing naval agreements came to an end and unless they could put something in their place, all (Continued on Page 7.)

British Pictures' Triumph in America

OUTPUT BOUGHT IN ADVANCE

One of the finest tributes paid to British films comes from Howard S. Cullman, manager of the world's largest cinema, the celebrated Roxy—"Cathedral of Motion Pictures"—in New York. The Roxy seats 6,200.

Mr. Cullman, who is now in London, has just bought in advance every picture that the Gaumont-British Picture Corporation are making for the foreign trade this year. The pictures number 16.

"The Clairvoyant," starring Claude Rains, is showing in New York now before being seen in London. "The Thirty-Nine Steps," "The Gypsy," "The New Arles" picture—"The Tunnel," and "King of the Damned" will follow.

"I did not buy British pictures—the New York public bought them for me," Mr. Cullman told the Daily Telegraph. "One week I was at a loss. I saw a British picture called 'I was a Spy,' with Conrad Veidt, Madeleine Carroll, and Herbert Marshall, and liked it well enough to take a chance.

"It was a 'hit.' The critics raved about it; 125,000 people paid to see it. From this we went on to show 'Little Friend,' 'Chu Chin Chow,' 'The Man Who Knew Too Much,' 'Evergreen,' and others till we reached the point where we could show two British pictures in the same programme.

"The British recent used to be a bar. To-day we are more used to it. I believe that if your people will keep off costume and pageant, and concentrate on modern stories with a good tempo, you will claim an increasingly large proportion of the world's market."

HELEN MORGAN'S DIVORCE

Helen Morgan, film actress and beauty queen, was at Los Angeles recently granted a divorce from Mr. Maurice Maschke, a Cleveland lawyer to whom she was secretly married in 1933.

Cruelly charges against her husband were made (says Reuter) by Helen Morgan, who declared that Maschke "never worked, never tried to find work, and when I was talking to someone else had a habit of putting his hand under my arm with what appeared an affectionate gesture while, in reality, he was digging his finger nails into my tender flesh."

Helen Morgan made her name as Julie in Ziegfeld's "Showboat," and also starred in Jerome Kern's operetta, "Sweet Adeline." She was born in Chicago in 1900 but went to Montreal to study singing, and there won a beauty contest which gained her the title of Miss Canada.

LILLIAN HARVEY BACK IN BERLIN

Lillian Harvey, returning to Germany recently after a long absence, was greeted by Willi Fritsch, the German star whose name has often been romantically linked with hers, with a large bunch of red roses when she stepped out of the air liner at Tempelhof Aerodrome.

She is to begin making a film entitled, "Black Roses" in July in German, English, and French. Willi Fritsch will play opposite her in the German version.

Lillian was met by film directors and an official from the Propaganda Ministry and many friends. There was an immense crowd of "fans."

Newspapers had been jubilantly proclaiming her return to Ger-

MAKING JUNKET

JUNKET is one of those apparently easy sweets which, however, require great care if they are to be perfect. When properly made it should cut quite clean and be smooth and firm. Heat a quart of milk to the temperature of new milk (this is about 38 degrees Fahr.), add to it a dessertspoonful of rennet or a special junket tablet, pour it into a glass dish, and leave without disturbing at all until set.

Spread over it some whipped or clotted cream, and sprinkle castor sugar and either grated nutmeg or cinnamon on top. Some people add a little brandy to the milk along with the rennet.

ACTRESS MARRIES ATHLETE

A Judge, in his shirt sleeves and without a tie, performed the marriage ceremony at Yuma, Arizona, recently, of Lili Damita, the Paris-born film actress, and Errol Flynn, the Irish athlete.

The couple, who were elegantly dressed, had made a special flight from Hollywood. They had taken every precaution to keep their engagement a secret, but the news of their impending marriage leaked out.

Flynn is the son of a professor in Ireland. Lili Damita, who is 28, had notable film parts in "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," "The Cock-Eyed World," and "Friends and Lovers." She appeared at the age of 14 in the ballet at the Opera de Paris, and at 19 succeeded Mistinguette as star of the Casino de Paris revue.

RAMON NAVARRO FOR LONDON STAGE

News was received in London recently, that Ramon Navarro, the screen star, has been signed up to appear in a musical play, "Royal Exchange," which will be produced in a London theatre in the autumn.

The film star will leave Hollywood for England at the beginning of September, to begin rehearsals.

U. S. CREDIT INFLATION

BUSINESS FAITH NEEDED

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York.

The United States to-day possesses reserves of cash and bank deposits which experts calculate would permit a potential expansion of credit of $105,000,000,000.

Such credit would be sufficient to finance a boom before which the speculative pyrotechnics of 1929 would pale into insignificance.

There is only one barrier to the immediate use of this vast potential credit volume. That is business confidence.

This vast credit reservoir has been created principally by Government spending that has necessitated billions of dollars of treasury borrowing. Since June of 1932 the Government debt has increased by more than nine billion dollars.

When the Government borrows the common practice is the sale of bonds to banks comprising the Federal Reserve System. Instead of actually paying the treasury in cash for the bonds, the banks create on their books a definite credit to the treasury's account.

When the Government finances relief any construction projects it draws cheques against credits which automatically have been created when the banks purchased the bonds. Those cheques are made payable to contractors, sellers of supplies and disbursers of relief funds, and usually act to swell their bank accounts correspondingly. In many cases, no money has changed hands, yet individual bank accounts may have been increased by millions of dollars. As collateral for these accounts, a bank has the government bonds which it has purchased.

The total bank deposits—including both time and demand deposits—now approximate $20,000,000,000 against $16,000,000,000 at the beginning of 1934. Net demand deposits alone have crossed $15,000,000,000 for the first time since 1929, and are 20 per cent. higher than they were a year ago.

With such bank credits near the all-time record, some economists say, it is only a question of time until businessmen, feeling a return of confidence, begin to draw on the idle funds. If they did so they might start the pump operating at top speed, and credit inflation might then be more than an academic term to the average citizen.

WIPE OUT EUROPE

BRITAIN ONLY WORTHY OF ESCAPE

"All the countries of Europe, except Great Britain, should be wiped off the map."

This was the startling statement made during an interview at Portland Oregon, by Mr. R. Masujima, of Tokyo, who is a prominent member of the Japanese Bar, a Fellow of the Inner Temple, and an honorary member of the American Bar Association, says Reuter.

Mr. Masujima is on a short visit to America, where he will speak before the annual convention of the American Bar Association.

"If all those European countries were completely wiped out, then the rest of the world would be at peace," he declared, "all their civilisation is behind them. I would leave Britain, because it is a great example to the rest of the world, even an example to you Americans."

HITLER AS A CHILD

REVELATIONS BY SISTER

Vienna, July 13.
"One day our father almost killed Adolf, who was then about 12 or 13 years old, because the future 'Fuehrer' of the 'Third Reich' demonstrated for the 'Anschluss' (union between Germany and Austria)." Frau Paula Hitler, Adolf Hitler's only sister who lives in Vienna, recently told her friends.
"From his savings Adolf had purchased a black-red-golden ribbon, the symbol of the Austrian Pan-Germans who agitated for the re-union of their country with Germany and were, therefore, considered as traitors under the Hapsburg regime," she related.
"This ribbon Adolf proudly dangled from his waistcoat pocket. The school teacher noticed it and indignantly informed our father. 'Father,' a customs official at Braunau on the Austro-German frontier, and a convinced follower of the Hapsburgs, got into such a fury that he beat the boy senseless. 'Nevertheless Adolf did not yield, but continued, although clandestinely, to wear his ribbon. 'This was not the only thrashing Adolf had to undergo from his father, who was an irascible man and who considered his son as a stubborn and obstinate good-for-nothing.
"Adolf was, it is true, always very taciturn and reticent.
"When asked by his family what he was pondering about, he usually replied with a shrug: 'What is the use of telling you; you would not understand.' Paula concluded her narrative.

LOVE SACRIFICED

Soul and heart she is devoted to her brother. For her nothing but Adolf and his 'Cause' exists. Fifteen years ago, when a pretty, buxom girl of 23, she was in love with a young man of promising talent and artistic ambitions. At that time, the Nazi party was just making its first steps in public. Paula felt that in her heart there was no room for both the 'Cause' and love.
She chose the 'Cause' and told her lover so. What the decision meant to a healthy, loving, young woman can easily be imagined. The lovers have, however, remained friends ever since.
In character as well as in physical respect Paula has much in common with her brother. The resemblance between the two is striking, although Paula is a bit shorter and more stocky of stature, and although her cheekbones are a trifle higher and give a Slavie touch to her appearance. Both possess an indomitable will-power; once they have set their minds on something, nothing in the world will make them deviate from their paths.
It is believed by his Austrian friends that Hitler, like his sister, had renounced marriage because he is convinced that for a character like his, family life and the 'Cause' are incompatible.

WHY THEY LIVE APART

One-sidedness and stubbornness which both possess to an extraordinary extent is perhaps the main reason why Paula chose to stay in Vienna instead of follow-

TALKIES FOR QUEEN MARY

THREE CINEMAS ON LUXURY LINER

The Cunard-White Star Line has decided to equip the ship Queen Mary with complete talkie apparatus, which will enable three separate performances to be given simultaneously. The contract, which calls for the finest and most complete specifications which have ever been supplied for shipboard use, has been given to the engineering section of the Gaumont-British Corporation.

The specifications call for the same quality projection as is supplied to the super-cinemas ashore. First-class, tourist and third-class sections of the Queen Mary will be catered for, each class to have its own cinema. The first class equipment is to be installed in the lounge, off which a complete talkie projection booth has been built.

In the tourist lounge similar arrangements have been made for the installation of an entirely new type of talkie apparatus—which completed successful trials on the test bench only last week.

The third-class talkie programmes will be shown in one of the several public rooms in this class. In this class the entire apparatus is of a portable nature, and can be erected and dismantled anywhere in the space of a few minutes.

ing Anna Rauppach's, her step-sister's, example and going to live in Germany where she would meet a more congenial atmosphere.

If not wittingly, at least subconsciously, she may feel that continued contact between two characters of such equal obstinacy would unavoidably lead to clashes.

She is, therefore, satisfied with an annual visit to her brother, and, for the rest, to admire him from afar.

Paula is absolutely free from any personal ambition. When in Germany, where her brother is the almighty ruler, she tries to be as unobtrusive as possible and never permits her name to appear in the papers.

She hates publicity of all kinds and lives in the greatest retirement. Never has she given an interview, nor has any stranger been admitted across her threshold.

She dresses very plainly and wears mostly dark garments, although she possesses artistic tastes and has arranged her apartment with great thought in light and gay colours.

With her brother she agrees that the 'Fuehrer's' relatives should not draw material profit from his exalted position.

She therefore deeply regrets that he cannot find a new job and must depend on her brother's allowance, albeit insignificant.

Paula has no political aspirations, and she carefully abstains from taking part in political activities. Nor has she ever permitted any ovations which Austrian Nazis would be only too glad to offer to their 'Great Fuehrer's' closest relative.—United Press.

STOMACH CAMERA

SIXTEEN PHOTOS IN HALF A MINUTE

SIZE OF A LEAD PENCIL

(By David Dietz.)

Atlantic City, N.J.

A camera no larger than the end of a lead pencil which makes 16 simultaneous photographs of the interior of the stomach in 30 seconds was described by one of its inventors, Dr. Herbert Hofmann of the Instituto Modelo de Buenos Aires, at the recent convention of the American Medical Society.

Collaborating with Dr. Hofmann in the invention of the stomach camera was Dr. J. P. Ulanoghi, Professor at the University of Buenos Aires.

The stomach camera is unique in that it is swallowed by the patient in a small rubber balloon. The camera is on the end of a rubber tube which makes its withdrawal simple.

The balloon is distended with air pumped through the tube after the patient has swallowed it. The distention of the balloon causes the stomach to distend, smoothing out the wrinkles on its wall. This distention serves also to focus the camera by insuring that the walls of the stomach are the proper distance from the camera.

The balloon is then punctured by a device connected to the tube. A brilliant electric light which is part of the camera flashes on and the 16 pictures are taken in a hundred and twentieth of a second.

The camera does not employ lenses but minute pinholes, operating on the principle of the pinhole camera. The sixteen films employed are each about a quarter of an inch square.

From them enlargements can be made and a model of the interior of the stomach constructed.

The camera represented a development of researches begun by Prof. Joseph Heilpern of Vienna. It is being used successfully in diagnosing stomach ulcers, cancers, and other diseased conditions of the stomach.

ANOTHER DEVICE

It was the second new diagnostic device demonstrated in the course of the A.M.A. meeting. Dr. Rudolf Schindler, a refugee professor from Germany, now at the University of Chicago, described a flexible Gastroscope for examining the interior of the stomach. This was a sort of periscope, the first half consisting of a rigid metal tube, the lower half of a flexible rubber tube.

A system of 40 lens in the tube makes it possible for the physician to look down the tube and view all parts of the interior of the stomach.

A review of events during the week's meeting of the A.M.A. reveals many important advances in the diagnosis of diseases and their treatment by drug and surgery. It also reveals that in the main, organized medicine in America has made no changes in its social outlook.

From the viewpoint of social action, the new move of the A.M.A. was to create a committee to study the problem of birth control. During the last five years, the house of delegates has consistently refused to discuss the subject at all.

Recalled from his estate at Ilminster, Somerset, where he was farming as a hobby, Sir Philip Game, former governor of New South Wales, will take over the duties as head of the Metropolitan Police of London, more commonly known as Scotland Yard. In taking this post he replaces Lord Trenchard who is retiring. Sir Philip distinguished himself in the World War. He has held several important posts with the Royal Air Force and has commanded that body in India.

With cycling becoming increasingly popular in the Old Country as the weather grows warmer, the problem of what to do with Master Baby, crops up. It is solved in a perfect manner, however, by this Inverness cyclist and his wife, who built a tiny sidecar for their bicycle in which the child sits with comfort enjoying the fresh air and countryside. A glass windshield protects the child from dust and dirt.

REVIVING N.R.A.

ADVISORY COUNCIL APPOINTED

ONE-MAN RULE

Washington. The N.R.A. Blue Eagle, revived in an emaciated form after its defeat in the Schechter case, has returned to one-man rule with a new nine and half months lease on life.

James L. O'Neill, former New York banker and recently control officer of N.R.A., was named by President Roosevelt to have complete charge of reorganization under the Extension Act passed by Congress.

Mr. Roosevelt, in his executive order setting up the new organization, indicated he anticipates further legislation to broaden and strengthen the present stop-gap N.R.A. arrangement. He hinted some such legislation may be sent to Congress.

"So long as there is possibility of further legislation, it will be desirable to maintain the general structure of the recovery administration in Washington and in field cities, and to retain those essential members of a trained personnel who can be usefully employed," he said.

"There will be lasting values in a careful appraisal of the two-year accomplishment of N.R.A. and in preserving for permanent use the records of that experience," the President added.

O'Neill, as acting administrator, will be assisted by Leon C. (Continued on next column.)

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

HONGKONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION.

IT IS HEREBY NOTIFIED that an Interim Dividend of £2.10.0 per Share, subject to deduction of Income Tax, has been declared for the HALF YEAR ending 30th June, 1935, at the rate of 2 1/2% per Dollar.

THE DIVIDEND will be payable on and after MONDAY, 12th AUGUST 1935, at the offices of the Corporation, where Shareholders are requested to apply for Warrants.

THE REGISTER OF SHARES of the Corporation will be closed from MONDAY 29th to SATURDAY 10th AUGUST (both days inclusive) during which period no transfer of shares can be registered.

By Order of the Board of Directors.
V. M. GRAYBURN,
Chief Manager.
Hongkong, 10th July, 1935.

Marshall labour member of the seven-man N.R.A. board which expired at midnight on June 16, and President Roosevelt to have complete charge of reorganization under the Extension Act passed by Congress.

Marshall will head a board to gather data on business and industry.

Cooney will direct a division of business co-operation to aid business firms that desire to maintain voluntary codes.

George L. Berry, President of the Printing Pressmen's Union and until June 16, a division administrator, was named as assistant to O'Neill, representing labour. The order set up an N.R.A. Advisory Council consisting of: Howell Cheney, Philip Murray, Emily Newell Blair, President William Green of the American Federation of Labour, Walton Hamilton, and Charles Edison, son of the late inventor.

TWO MAIN FUNCTIONS

In returning N.R.A. to a one-man control, the President followed a desire expressed several months ago. The Recovery Agency had been directed by a board, lately headed by Donald R. Richberg, resigned, since Gen. Hugh S. Johnson stepped out last year.

The President did not indicate how many of the 5,400 N.R.A. employees would be retained, but declared a "steady but gradual reduction of personnel" to be a sound public policy.

"The administration of the amended Act will proceed as rapidly as possible to adjust activities and personnel to conform to present limited objectives," Mr. Roosevelt said.

Under the President's order, the new N.R.A. extended to April 1, 1936, will have two principal functions:

1. A study of the effects of the codes of fair competition and the result of their elimination. This work will be under the direction of Marshall.

2. Co-operation with business in the formation of voluntary maintenance of standards of competition. This work will be under Cooney's direction.

The President did not expand his reference to possible future N.R.A. legislation. He has proposed legislation providing that government contractors must agree to maintain certain standards of wages, hours and the elimination of child labour.

It was believed, however, that in his executive order the President referred to a programme to be presented to the next Congress. This, it was believed, may include amendment to the constitution to give the Government powers of business control which the supreme court ruling denied.—United Press.

NEW FORD FEATURES

RUBBER PLAYS BIG PART

The quantity of rubber used in Ford car construction has virtually trebled in the last eight years and investigation just made by the Ford Motor Company reveals. The Model-T contained only 56 pounds of rubber, while the present Ford V-8 contains 164 pounds. Ford rubber is used for making steering wheels, batteries, switches, junction blocks, weatherstrips, running boards, floor mats, motor supports, axle bumpers, sound dampers, fan belts, radiator hose, insulating material, fenders, door bumpers spring shackles, bushings, and top materials, as well as tyres and tubes.

All Ford rubber compositions are made to strict specifications and severely tested before use in car construction. Steering wheels must withstand drops from a height of six feet after twelve hours exposure to a temperature of 20 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

Windshield weatherstrips are exposed to the hot sun and high humidity on the roof of the branch plant of the Ford Motor Company at Jacksonville, Florida, to determine anti-checking and anti-rattling qualities. Rubber matting is given ingenious tests for resistance to abrasion and, in addition, running-board stocks are checked for their qualities in bonding to steel.

Rubber used for motor supports and axle bumpers is subjected to a distorting force far in excess of any that would be encountered while in use. Fan belts are severely tested for stretch, and improvements based on these laboratory findings have reduced the stretch in Ford fan belts to one-third of what it was, though the present belt is 50 per cent. longer than used on previous models.

Ford subjects the tyres it uses to the most exhaustive tests. In the laboratory, Ford developed machines test for carcass and tread resistance and indicate treadwear resistance. Other machines check for resistance to bruise-breaking. Tyres are sent for testing to the River Rouge Plant from all company branches throughout the world. Regardless of where the tyre was manufactured, Ford maintains control. To determine their stability at high speed, Ford tests tyres on the road.

MARKET UPWARD YESTERDAY

New York, July 22. The following reports on the New York Stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz:

The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market—Stocks today reached the year's high level, carrying the general list upward. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were higher, with the exception of a few utility and sugar issues. Bonds were irregular, but high-grade Corporation issues were higher.

S. C. & F. New York office cables: The market was strong, especially towards the close when it broadened. Sears Roebuck's sales for 27 weeks ending July 16 are up 28 per cent. as compared with the corresponding period of last year. Steel mill activity during the past week is estimated at 42.2 per cent. of capacity, compared with 39.9 per cent. the previous week.

New York and Chicago commodity reports received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz:

Cotton: It is predicted that the present session of Congress will last until November 1. Mills are operating on a hand-to-mouth basis, with a continuation of curtailment probable. Wheat: Prices declined on decreased rust advice and on the slightly overbought condition of the market. The visible supply of wheat shows an increase of 1,814,000 bushels. Corn: The market declined on favourable weather conditions and increasing offerings. Visible supply has decreased by 366,000 bushels. Rubber: The Trade is awaiting the result of the meeting of the Control scheduled on July 30. There are hopes of further restriction. Sugar: The market was steadier on a better demand for raws and lighter offerings owing to the fact that Cuba plans to withdraw 100,000 tons from the market. Further advances are likely when the Cuban action is confirmed.

WAR CLOUDS

Now that there seems small hope of a peaceful adjustment of the dispute between Italy and Abyssinia, it is worth while to look into the circumstances which have provoked the present crisis. Abyssinia, as is well known, except where it borders on Egypt is surrounded by territories ruled by Britain, France and Italy. Relations between Italy and Abyssinia have been strained for some years, and on several occasions Italy has threatened the Abyssinian border, for the frontier between them is desert country and no definite boundary has ever been made. It is this undefined frontier that has caused all the trouble. In 1908 the countries concerned concluded a Treaty saying that their frontier should be 180 miles from the sea. Part of this Treaty said that the actual boundary should be marked by wells of water, but this has never been done, and both Italy and Abyssinia accuse each other of failing to co-operate. By September, 1934, trouble was brewing. Abyssinia was said to be arming, and Italy was moving troops to Somaliland. Both Governments, as is usual in times of danger, stated that their relationship was entirely friendly, but they had their eyes on the wells. Unalul, a town sixty miles west of the unknown frontier, appeared in Italian maps as part of Italy's dominions, while the Emperor of Abyssinia, who was tightening his hold on his outlying provinces, declared that Unalul was part of his province of Ogaden. In November, 1934, an Anglo-Abyssinian Commission went to Unalul. A clash with Italian colonial troops occurred and after nearly a month no solution of the main problem was reached. The British Mission made every possible effort, but it was continually thwarted by the uncompromising attitude of the Italian representative. This officer stood by his Government's original view, that Italian dominion must cover the provocative wells in addition to the town of Unalul. After the fighting of last December, each side blamed the other for beginning it. Abyssinia protested to the League

NOTES OF THE DAY

THE CLOSED DOOR

Whatever Great Britain's critics may think and say of her past, for the last several decades she has been pre-eminent amongst the nations which have striven for peace. In the opinion of some she is the only nation in Europe, whose counsel is of any consequence, working wholeheartedly for the avoidance of war. Together with France—whose tortures in battle have been too great for her to risk reduction of her armaments or relaxation of the guard upon her frontiers—Britain is making an eleventh-hour effort to prevent an outbreak of hostilities between Italy and Abyssinia. As she did in 1914, so she is doing now: trying to stamp out the embers of hatred and distrust which have caused the mobilisation of great armies. There is now a suggestion that an Italo-Abyssinian clash may involve other nations and repeat the tragedy of 1914. Although French sympathies are allegedly with Italy in her dispute with the Ethiopians, France too sees the marching menace of events, the risk of rousing Africa to revolt, the possibility of a spreading of the fires of war into Asia and Europe. Neither compromise nor concession will satisfy Italy. Only the complete humbling and subjugation of the Ethiopian state will soothe Rome's ruffled feelings. Abyssinia, by her defiance, by her show of courage and of pride, has closed the door on any possibility of reconciliation, it appears. But if Abyssinia has closed the door Italy has locked it, and has apparently thrown away the key. Great Britain and France have offered. There will most likely be war in Africa. War for the sake of colonisation, in the name of progress and humanity, surely belongs to another era. Is not the world too old to rear another Caesar?

A BIG JOB

Irksome and uncomfortable times are ahead; at least that is likely to be the view taken of the effect upon all the people of these islands of the precautions against air raids in time of war, says the Edinburgh Evening Dispatch. After many years of consideration and preparation by a special department of the Home Office, the plans of defence, it is said, are about to be made public. Only England is mentioned in the unofficial forecast, but it may be assumed that Scotland too will be fully provided for. The basis of the scheme is the municipality. In each a large committee will be formed and be responsible for the organisation of civilian defence. To that end all the public services will be enlisted—fire brigades, police, medical officers of health, burglar surveyors, transport, water, gas, and electricity officials; ambulance workers, and the Red Cross. Society. The owners of large buildings, such as factories and warehouses, will also have their part to play. Evidently it is not proposed to put all the inhabitants into gas masks; only the members of what are called the essential services will have that protection. But everyone will have instruction of sorts; elementary guidance in the protection of houses and rooms against gas attacks, precautions during an attack, and treatment of victims of gas poisoning. All this may be carried out with any serviceable degree of efficiency it will require enormous labour and very thorough organisation. How will British citizens react to this discipline? They have the reputation of being too cool to be easily startled and too casual to subject themselves to direction and instruction at the hands of any committee. The civic authorities, who apparently are to be primarily responsible for the organisation, will need all the sympathy and help they are likely to get.

Confession may gratify your conscience, but at the same time jeopardise the future of your married happiness. The acid test of every contemplated confession should be a regard for the future as distinct from the past.

It is impossible for any woman, until she has lived with a man for a number of years, to anticipate how he will react to her confession. Men are strangely illogical animals, and though they will often forgive a criminal offence, they will react very differently to an emotional one.

Personally I deplore women's traditional code on these matters which panders to her delight in delving into the past and divulging secrets which involve others, whereas to most men the past is past, and they prefer to let it lie.

WOMEN LONG TO CONFESS

By URSULA BLOOM

THE question of whether confession of the past should be made before marriage must depend on the temperaments of the persons concerned—and the chances of ultimate revelation.

This may seem like shirking the issue, but all with experience will know that any offence which goes into public records cannot, like good buoys, be kept down.

Any happenings in the past likely to demand confession are bound to fall into one of two categories: offences against the State or against the individual. Offences against the State must be divulged: an offence against the individual requires consideration.

As a general rule, I should say without hesitation: Put a double lock on the door of the past, and if possible put something over the fanlight. If the door is opened much more is let loose than was ever locked in.

Women persistently long to confess. They do so not for the future happiness of husband or potential husband but for the sheer joy of satisfying their own love of the confessional. (Why does it give women such a "kick"?)

I maintain that an incident repeated is never the same as it was when it was enacted. Time and atmosphere cannot be recaptured, and instead of the sympathetic moment which, even if it does not justify, at least explains the lapse, you are faced with seemingly very ugly facts that can never be satisfactorily cloaked in words.

The main danger is that after two or three years, when the intoxicating glamour of engagement days and honeymoon is not so acute, jealousy and suspicion may arise. A man, feeling that people confessing will endeavour to exonerate themselves and to lighten their own part in the offence, broods upon the revelation and fills in details which were never there.

It is my belief that, while a newly engaged couple are far from normal, the dangers to which they are subject are not half so numerous as those which confession after marriage lets loose.

Confession may gratify your conscience, but at the same time jeopardise the future of your married happiness. The acid test of every contemplated confession should be a regard for the future as distinct from the past.

It is impossible for any woman, until she has lived with a man for a number of years, to anticipate how he will react to her confession. Men are strangely illogical animals, and though they will often forgive a criminal offence, they will react very differently to an emotional one.

Personally I deplore women's traditional code on these matters which panders to her delight in delving into the past and divulging secrets which involve others, whereas to most men the past is past, and they prefer to let it lie.

I maintain that a secret is not always one's own to give away.

Men take that as an accepted fact. It is part of their school curriculum. Women, unfortunately, don't think the same.

All but the moonstruck realise that it is not passionate love that binds marriage and ensures the happiness of both parties; it is affection and discussion and good comradeship, a similar angle on life, mutual friends and home ties. These are things that might stand revelations, but, even so, I am more convinced that everything is to be lost by confession. This is one of those cases when speech is valuable, but silence is invaluable.

Men prefer to keep their illusions. They are quite happy to be cheated if they think they have secured what they want (and particularly if it is what somebody else wants too).

Let me look at this question as a parent.

I should never advise any girl to tell my son of anything in her past that might spoil his or their future, and it would certainly never be my business to pry into her secrets or to divulge them. Even on my own son's behalf I should realise that, like a wasp's nest, they were better left undisturbed.

But what I should like to see insisted upon is a medical certificate. Marriage without a medical certificate is dangerous.

Although I realise that nowadays to ask for a certificate would be to imply a stigma, I feel that if it were made compulsory it would be a tremendous step in safeguarding marriage.

The facts of a medical certificate constitute the only confession that matters, for its facts involve another generation. They are the only parts of the past which need affect the future.

I have seen so many tragedies where ignorance of epilepsy, drunkenness, and hereditary illnesses has caused terrible sorrow.

Most decent women (and it is foolish to believe that every woman who has a secret in her past is not decent) learn their lesson from a mistake. They take that lesson to heart, and it is highly probable they are far more to be trusted than the simple little creatures who have never had any emotional experience.

Let the past die; place "Rest in Peace" at its head and let it be. To disinter it may mean war.

I do not agree with the New York judge's declaration that if a man is deceived he is entitled to annulment. This may be the American attitude but it is not ours. The past should be dead, the present is ours. In life only the future matters. Let us employ the present moment to make the future hours happy. Surely the confessional is not the right way to do that?

ATTENTION, girls! Just a few words, before we start this fascinating column, on how to use your lip-stick and face powder.

If there's one thing that must be used artistically and correctly it's these messes that get all over our clothes and face when we take you out poodle-faking.

With a few accessories you'd be surprised what a difference powder and paint can make to a girl.

First of all, it is necessary to have a face, with a mouth in it. The face should be washed and, if the means are at hand, dried. A piece of well-chalked string is then tied to one ear, stretched across the face to the other ear, and then given a slight flip with the fingers.

This will result in a white chalk-line across the face, which will give the position for the rouge on the cheeks. The rouge may be applied with a small mop or a trowel, care being taken to scoop any surplus out of the ears.

The face is then taken across to the dressing table and pushed into the powder. With the face buried, blow vigorously, thus distributing the powder all over the face and neck. Some cream the face before powdering. This gives a nice stucco effect.

Now take the left hand and slide it down the face until you come to an aperture. This is the mouth. Work the lip-stick into whatever shape the mouth is to be, and press it on while still plastic.

When pencilling the eyebrows always use an indelible pencil. Nothing is more untidy than a girl who, while pushing her hair back, has wiped one of her eyebrows off.

Those lucky girls who can yawn naturally should add the weeniest touch of rouge to the tonsils.

That will be all for the present, girls.

Remember—Art, and plenty of it.

The tourist and the tourette stood entranced at the scene. Away to the left was the Lido gleaming white in the moonlight. On the right was the replica of the Edinburgh Castle. Below, lawns of exquisite loveliness, bordered with flowers and as the eyes rose, far off islands glistened in a sparkling lagoon-laden sea of silver. It was Repulse Bay, and the third day of their honeymoon in Hongkong.

"Darling," she whispered, "isn't this heavenly?"

He sighed. "Do you know," he exclaimed, "life doesn't seem long enough for our happiness. Just think, even if we are fortunate, our married life can hardly last longer than fifty years."

"Is that all?" she queried, nestling closer.

"Yes, only fifty years in which to love each other."

Then kiss me quickly, dear," she said, "we're wasting time!"

(Special to "Telegraph")

Nairobi, July 22. Details of the attack by Masai warriors on the camp of Mr. Buxton, District Commissioner, last month, were revealed at the inquest on two natives who were killed in repulsing the attack.

A dramatic statement was made by a wounded Masai, who stated that the attackers intended to kill everyone in the camp wearing clothes. He added that they would have succeeded but for the fact that Mr. Buxton's small force was armed with rifles.

Graphically describing the attack, this witness said his party only fired after the Masais disobeyed two warnings. He was unaware of any grievance on the part of the attackers, but he blamed a ceremony from which the men had just emerged for their frenzied condition.

At the warriors' trial the Magistrate completely exonerated Mr. Buxton, sentencing forty warriors, three to two years for robbery, and one to three years and eighteen strokes with the cane for assault. Several were acquitted. Reuter Special.

ROAD SAFETY CAMPAIGN

HIGHWAY CODE FOR EVERYBODY

London, July 22. The Post Office started today on the enormous task of distributing to every house in Great Britain a copy of the "Highway Code" containing a simple summary of rules for their observance in the interest of road safety.

The distribution of fifteen million copies of the Code, which is expected to require five days for completion, is part of the intensive efforts of the Minister of Transport to reduce the number of road accidents, and other features of this week's campaign are a tour by a broadcasting van, the release of road safety propaganda talk, a display of 300,000 posters in London, and a broadcast address at the end of the week by the Minister of Transport himself. British Wireless.

C. K. S. Smith, driver of private car No. 7316, appearing before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, on a charge of leaving the car unattended in Queen's Road Central, near the Asia Life Building, for ten minutes on July 11 was fined $5.

Mr. A. C. Jeffreys, of the Hongkong Telephone Company, has reported the theft of 500 yards of telephone wire, connecting No. 229, Cheungshawan Road, No. 34, Marching Street, No. 115, Aplin Street, between 1 p.m. on July 20 and 9 a.m. on July 22. The value of the wire is $5.20.

Three months' hard labour was passed on Wong Ming when he appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning and pleaded guilty to receiving a radiator cap which had been stolen from private car No. 3567, which was parked in Kimberley Road near Torres Building on Saturday last. Mr. P. Braga appeared as complainant and Inspector Shannon prosecuted.

A very well-known banisher, Leung Chung, aged 36, who is described by the police as a nuisance, appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning, on a charge of returning from banishment before the expiration of his term. Defendant was banished from the Colony for a period of 10 years in April 1934. The case was remanded for 48 hours for defendant to be medically examined.

A 20-year-old bricklayer named Wong Tong appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning in answer to a charge of assaulting Tong Mui, aged 41, married woman, at Robinson Road yesterday, with intent to cause bodily harm. Sergeant P. O. Guild stated that the woman was still in hospital, although her injury was not of a very serious nature. He applied for 48 hours remand, which was granted by the Magistrate. Defendant admitted the charge.

COMMONS ENLIGHTENED

London, July 22. A group of all parties of the House of Commons to-night attended a dinner designed to enable the Abyssinian Minister, Mr. Martin, to state his country's case.

Mr. Rhyas Davis, Labour member, presided. He declared that the League of Nations was probably on its last trial.

The former Egyptian Pasha, who was the former Speaker of the Egyptian Parliament, Hifaf Pasha, both expressed their sympathy with Abyssinia and thanked the British Government for its efforts to prevent war.

M. Martin detailed the recent improvements in Abyssinia, especially the reforms regarding slavery and the slave-traffic, and justice.

The root of the trouble, he said, was that Italy wanted to take over the whole of his country, ostensibly to civilise it.

ABYSSINIA TO BORROW

The Abyssinian Minister, M. Martin, interviewed by Reuter, said that tentative negotiations were going forward with individuals with a view to placing a £2,000,000 loan in Britain or America for the purpose of developing Abyssinia.

He added that the Government had received letters from hundreds of volunteers wanting to fight for Abyssinia. Some of the volunteers wanted to fight without pay.

"It is a strange thing that many of these volunteers were Irish," he said. Reuter.

Pleading guilty before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, to the theft of a bicycle from a garage at No. 12, Duke Street, Kowloon, on July 19, Chan Kong, 21, unemployed, was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour. When asked why he had stolen the bicycle, defendant stated that he wanted to raise some money to go back to his country. Inspector Chester Woods appeared for the prosecution. Tang Kong, 43, was the complainant.

The body of a Chinese woman, named Chan, aged 77 years, who was killed as a result of being knocked down by a lorry No. 4216 outside an unnumbered house on the Tai Po Main road, has been removed to the Kowloon Mortuary. The accident occurred on Sunday.

Appearing on remand from yesterday before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, Wong Leung, unemployed, was sentenced to two months' hard labour on a charge of having committed an indecent assault on an eleven-year-old girl, S. P. Lai, outside No. 256 Wing Road on July 14.

Walking into the ground floor of the Sincere Company, a man named Tam Li, aged 32, picked up a singlet from a counter and hid it under his jacket. He was seen by Li Piu, a saleswoman, who arrested him. Tam Li was brought before Mr. Macfadyen this morning and sentenced to three weeks' hard labour. The singlet was stated to be worth 60 cents.

Charged before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning with unlawful possession of four packets of type valued at $3 Tam Wing, aged 28, unemployed, was sentenced to three weeks' hard labour on pleading guilty. Detective Sergeant Baldwin, prosecuting, stated that defendant was stopped by a detective when carrying a bag, which, on being opened, was found to contain the type. Defendant told the police that the type had been given him by a friend of a shop. There was no evidence against the friend and the police could not prosecute in his case. Wong Long-shing, master of the Tin Sang Printers Shop, of 28, Aberdeen Street, appeared as complainant.

MANSLAUGHTER CASE ENDS

"NOT GUILTY" VERDICT

ADDRESSES AND SUMMING-UP

A verdict of "Not Guilty" was returned by the jury at the Criminal Sessions this morning in the trial of So Shing, alias So Pat-sun, alias So Cheuk-king, for the manslaughter of Wong Pak-kiu, alias Wong Cheuk-lam at 157, Des Voeux Road Central, third floor, on September 9, 1934.

The accused was alleged to have assaulted the deceased while, through fright, jumped from the verandah of the house into the street and died from the injuries received.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, assistant Attorney-General, instructed by Mr. W. J. Lockhart-Smith, assistant Crown Solicitor, appeared for the Crown, and the accused was defended by Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C., instructed by Mr. M. K. Lo.

The following jury was empanelled to hear the case:—Messrs. A. M. Larcino (Foreman), Maurice Ching, Lai Kwan-chit, Chan Ping-sun, Wong Tin-nin, Chan Shik-sum, and A. M. Tye.

POLICE EVIDENCE

After Sub-Inspector J. O'Donovan and Acting Sub-Inspector W. E. Meadows had given formal evidence, L/Sgt. Kwok Tak-sing told the Court that on the night in question he was on duty in the vicinity of the house when he heard a sound as if someone had fallen down from the top. He immediately went to the scene where he found deceased lying near the gutter.

Witness then proceeded to the top floor of 157, Des Voeux Road Central, where he found the "grilled door locked. He forced it open with a wood chopper, and went inside. Four persons were present, but accused was not there.

In reply to Mr. Jenkin, witness said deceased was lying three paces from the curb.

Detective-Inspector A. H. Elston, who was in charge of the case, was then called. He deposed to seeing accused in the charge room of Central Police Station on the evening of June 23 this year. Accused told him that he had heard that there was a reward for his arrest in connection with the death of Wong Pak-kiu and asked that the police should investigate the matter. Witness then arrested accused under the warrant issued after the Coroner's inquest, when a verdict of "Manslaughter" was returned.

COUNSEL'S QUERY

Cross-examining witness, Mr. Jenkin said: As I shall be making the point later, I want to put this to you. Is it not the duty of the police to bring all the persons connected with the matter to give evidence in Court? We know that the man called Yung Lai was on the premises and we know that the next day he attended the mortuary and identified the body. He did not, however, attend the Coroner's inquest. Can you tell me why?

Witness: I made enquiries after the death enquiry but could not find him.

You didn't make enquiries for him before the inquest?—No.

There is evidence before this Court that not only was the man in the premises, but he actually went up to the Central Police Station to make a statement. I don't know what is in it, because nobody told me. Can you explain why is it that the man was not placed before the Coroner to tell what he knew of this matter?—I understand from other officers concerned in the case that he could not be found.

No steps were taken to hold him pending the enquiry?—No. The inquest was held two and a half months later.

Re-examined by Mr. Fraser, witness said there was no justification in holding the man at all.

Mr. Fraser then indicated his proposal to put in the statement made by Yung Lai.

Mr. Jenkin remarked that the solicitors instructing him had been pressing time after time at the Lower Court for witnesses to be called, but their application was refused. He could not understand why Mr. Fraser now intended to put in the statement.

His Lordship: I don't understand this small farce. Mr. Fraser, what is the new point you try to bring in?

Mr. Fraser said a letter had been received from Messrs. Lo and Lo asking for the statements given by persons who could not be called as witnesses. He knew of no reason why such an extraordinary demand was made. The suggestion of putting in the statement came from Mr. Jenkin.

ACCUSED'S STATEMENT

An interpreter at the Central Police Station was then called, and he deposed to taking down the statement made by accused in reply to the charge.

"About this matter I will not right now say anything. I will make a statement in Court, because I am

It had maintained peace for the last fifteen years, because the ratios adopted provided a standard of strength appropriate to defensive needs and at the same time giving no country such predominance as would make it safe to risk aggression.

RATIO PROBLEM

Sir Bolton stated that it was unfortunately necessary to abandon the principle of ratios in efforts to secure new agreements, because some countries felt it wounding to their national pride. He added that they had to have a system of programmes. They would not ask the naval Powers what their ultimate strength was going to be, but what size Navy did they propose to have in 1942. Then, if they could by agreement accommodate those various naval strengths so as to provide adequate defence, not making it exceedingly unlikely for any country to attack with any chance of ultimate success, they would achieve something of enormous advantage to the taxpayers of the world and contribute very greatly to general pacification.

A JIG-SAW PUZZLE

Coming to the question of the agreement with Germany, the First Lord compared the task of trying to secure international agreement with the putting together of a jigsaw puzzle. In which the pieces were continual, which altering in shape, size and colour. Until recently, it had proved almost impossible to set any two pieces together. For this reason, the Admiralty welcomed the proposal of a great country like Germany to fix their ratio for ever at a point in relation to our own which we could view without undue anxiety. The general agreement which they hoped to arrive at would not have been any good at all unless Germany had been in it. He claimed that the Government did a benefit not to Britain alone, but to the world, when it closed with the German offer.

With the object of obtaining agreement on building programmes, they had been having bilateral confidential conversations with a good many countries. The conversations were not conferences at which they could settle anything, but were to pave the way to a conference which they hoped might be held at the end of this year. British Wireless.

ill at present."

Mr. Fraser then handed in the report of Dr. Pringle who made a post-mortem examination of the deceased and who is at present away from the Colony, as well as the deposition of the accused given in the Lower Court.

Lai Kin, a 15-year-old boy, who was said to be an eye-witness of the incident, on being recalled by His Lordship, said the accused ran to the balustrade, climbed over it, stood and then jumped down.

This concluded the case for the prosecution, and Mr. Jenkin informed His Lordship that he did not propose putting his client in the witness-box.

COUNSEL'S ADDRESS

Addressing the jury, Mr. Fraser said: The only thing I ask you is to come to your judgment with a fair mind, weighing the evidence of the Crown and that of the defence.

Mr. Jenkin: The Attorney General cannot tell the jury to weigh the evidence of the prosecution and the defence. In this case, the Crown have put in the depositions of the accused as part and parcel of their case, and under the circumstances we have only one case here to consider and that is the case for the prosecution.

His Lordship concurred in this view.

Continuing, Mr. Fraser said there were two different versions of the incident. The prosecution alleged that the deceased was assaulted by the accused and that through fright he jumped down to the street from the verandah. Counsel then went on to read over the depositions of the accused and submitted that he had produced sufficient evidence to contradict the points raised in the Crown's case.

Mr. Jenkin: My Lord, has the Crown any right to contradict any evidence which it has put in as part and parcel of its case?

His Lordship: Yes, of course.

Mr. Jenkin: I don't think they have, at least not in my experience.

His Lordship: I have come across it in mine.

Mr. Fraser: I am quite sure my friend is wrong. I can cite sufficient authorities in which this practice has been conducted.

Turning to the jury, Mr. Fraser submitted that the accused, after having got the deceased in his power, went on to assault him. The document found in the safe showed sufficient motive for the attack. The document stated that deceased had enticed his (accused's) wife away.

THE DEFENCE

Opening his defence, Mr. Jenkin reminded the jury that it was their sworn duty to be quite satisfied that the attack was made by the prisoner upon the deceased because he wanted to be avenged for the wrong which the deceased had done him by tampering with his wife.

In his opening address, the prosecuting counsel had stated that it was a heaven-sent opportunity that the deceased should be present at accused's premises. This, submitted Mr. Jenkin, was entirely wrong, as the accused had been to the premises a week before the incident. On that occasion he was not assaulted, the reason submitted counsel, being that the accused had no intention of revenge.

Counsel then referred to the discrepancies in the evidence given by witnesses for the Crown, and submitted that no reasonable person could convict his client on such evidence.

In his summing-up, His Lordship told the jury that there were two different versions of the incident. All the evidence, that they had heard was, technically, part of the Crown case. The prosecuting counsel, he said, was entitled to ask the jury to believe some of the evidence he had put in and to disbelieve what had been contradicted by other evidence. In this case, it had been admitted that there was a fight on the floor on the night in question, and that the deceased had fallen from the third floor verandah and met his death as the result of that fall.

The whole of the Crown case relied on the evidence of the boy, Lai Kin. In his Lordship's opinion, the boy was a truthful witness.

His Lordship then read over the evidence of the boy, and said that the story had, to a certain extent, been corroborated by another witness who was present at the time of the assault.

Referring to the document found in the safe, His Lordship said he thought the jury must agree with him that it showed that some two months before the assault, the prisoner had harboured a grudge against his home.

"It is unfortunate," said His Lordship, "that the Crown had chosen to have the deposition of the accused read to you as it reflected on the responsibility of the defence. It is also unfortunate that the accused was not called so that you might judge what kind of a person he is. However, under the circumstances, I think the defence counsel had acted rightly, as the Crown had already put in the accused's deposition."

In conclusion, His Lordship directed the jury on points of law in returning their verdict.

The jury retired for twenty minutes and returned the verdict stated above.

FRED PERRY DICTATES TERMS TO BARON VON CRAMM

IN TENNIS FINAL AT WIMBLEDON

London, July 6.

Yesterday Perry won the Singles Championship for the second year in succession by defeating Baron von Cramm of Germany in three truly beautiful sets. He won by 6-2, 6-4, 6-4, and this is the first time in the history of the Wimbledon Championships that the same player has won the Men's Singles Championship two years running.

The Centre Court was packed for Friday's play, and there were sunshine and breeze to make the match all the more worth watching. By his play last year Fred Perry became a commanding personality in the history of Wimbledon, when he brought to an end the reign of the English Singles players, extending back over a quarter of a century. Now he becomes history's first player to have gone through from the first round and won on two successive occasions. There is all the difference in the world between a Doherty or a Tilden waiting in all the glamour of invincibility to meet his challenger, and the Champion of these days, who, step by step, has "the strength of many nations" eager to profit from the slightest faltering. Perry would appear to have reached the happy condition when he cannot play badly enough to lose, and to see him at his best is to feel that he will go on winning for ever.

The first of the two semi-final matches in the Lawn Bowls Pairs Championship will be played off this afternoon when the Silvas will meet the Duncans. The match is to be played on the Civil Service C. C. green. On present form the Silva cousins should qualify for the final but the father and son, who have been reproducing very good form this season, are capable of extending the Club de Recreio pair, although it is doubtful whether they can rise to the heights of a victory.

The Silvas qualified for the semi-final by beating A. M. Omar and K. M. Omar 28-14; L. J. Silva and H. A. Alves 20-14; L. Glendinning and W. Glendinning 22-16 and H. F. Luz and H. Heer 26-13, while the Duncans eliminated H. Overy and E. Goodwin 21-18; J. M. Purvis and H. H. Rose 20-10; and W. K. Way and A. S. Gomes 25-12. They received a bye in the first round. Three of the quarter-final matches in the Singles Championship have also been arranged for this afternoon.

The following is the full programme for today: PAIRS CHAMPIONSHIP: L. A. R. Duncan v. F. X. M. da Silva; L. J. Silva v. C. G. Silva; CIVIL SERVICE C. C. GREEN: SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP: T. Armstrong v. H. A. Alves; H. Overy v. W. Glendinning; G. N. Mitchell v. J. V. Ramsay (Club de Recreio Green).

GERMAN CHANGES TACTICS: It was in the second and third sets that von Cramm looked more like the attacking player he is. Clearly he could not beat Perry from the baseline, so he made up his mind to volley. But just as eventually Nostren's treasure of silver was the end of him, so the volley was the end of von Cramm. Perry has a discouraging way with a volleyer; his speed of foot taken him to all but the most killing volleys, and in them he finds the angle and pace for the passing drive. What the match really amounted to was that Perry usually knew where von Cramm would send the ball, whereas von Cramm was never quite sure about Perry. What a lovely sight it was to have drives on the forehand so perfectly made, the ball skimming low and long all over the court until one or the other, usually Perry, ended the rally with a plunging drive across the forecourt a volley or a smash.

BOBSLEIGH'S ILL-LUCK

Still Lame and May Miss St. Leger

Lord Derby's trolly Bobsleigh, who broke down in his preparation for the Derby, is still lame and may not be able to run in the last of the season's classic races, the St. Leger, which will be run on September 11.

Bobsleigh was confidently expected to beat Bahram in the Derby. He is still in the veterinary surgeon's hands and has now been turned out to grass in one of his owner's paddocks for a fortnight.

EIGHT RUNS SHORT OF RECORD

RECENT CRICKET MATCH

C. R. Maxwell and S. C. Newman, when playing for Sir Julien Cahn's XI against Leicester at Nottingham recently scored 336 runs for the seventh wicket in 170 minutes.

The partnership failed, by eight runs, to beat that by "Ranji" and Newham of 33 years ago, when they made 344 runs for Sussex against Essex at Leyton. Ranjitsinghi made 230 and Newham 153.

For Cahn's XI in last month's match Maxwell hit 268 out of 390 in three hours and ten minutes. His total included four sixes and 44 fours—200 runs in boundary strokes and was chanceless.

His was the highest individual score of the season and Cahn's XI made the highest total.

Newman scored 101 runs.

DOYLE'S NEXT FIGHT

Against Braddock's Partner

New York, June 27. Jack Doyle, the Irish heavy-weight boxer, who won his first fight in the United States on Tuesday is to meet Jack McCarthy, who acts as sparring-partner to J. J. Braddock, the world champion.

McCarthy is stated to be a rugged third-grade fighter.

Doyle is in training at Kingston, and the bout will probably take place on July 9 at Boston.—Reuter.

LEGALITY OF T. T. RACES

VERDICT AGAINST FARMER

The holding of T.T. races on the Manx course is legal, the Attorney-General ruled in the Manx Court on June 27.

The question was raised the previous week in the defence of a farmer who was summoned for allowing sheep to stray on the course during practice. It was contended that the roads could only be closed for the racing of light locomotives, and a light locomotive, as defined by the 1933 Road Traffic Act, was a vehicle "which does not exceed eleven and a half tons but does exceed seven and a half tons."

Under the Highway Board Act, 1927, power was given to close roads for practices for light locomotives under three and a half tons. In the 1933 Road Traffic Act, through an oversight, no power was given to close roads for motor-cycles or racing cars under three and a half tons.

The case was adjourned for the Attorney-General to deal with the matter, and on June 27 he stated that the definitions in the Road Traffic Act did not affect the Highway Board Act.

The Court accepted the Attorney-General's explanation, and the farmer was fined 10s.

YOUNG LINDRUM ON VISIT TO ENGLAND

GAMES ARRANGED WITH EXPERTS

TO MEET DAVIS

London, July 12. Horace Lindrum, the young Australian billiard and snooker professional champion, nephew of Walter Lindrum, will visit England during the forthcoming season.

In the event of his manager, Miss Violet Lindrum, not being able to accompany him, Melbourne Inman will act as both guardian and manager.

Matches have been arranged with Willie Smith, Tom Newman, Inman, Tom Reece, Con Stanbury, the Canadian snooker champion, and Joe Davis, present holder of both the English billiards and snooker titles.

New York Giants Fall From Grace

New York, July 22.

After having held a commanding lead for the major part of the season, the New York Giants' baseball outfit have fallen from grace and, following recent defeats, including the loss of a double header yesterday, they have now been displaced from the head of the National League Table by the Cardinals.

The Giants were to-day opposed to the St. Louis Cardinals, who have been second for the greater part of the season. The New York club scored only five runs against their opponents' eight and are now two games behind.

The Cubs improved their position yesterday at the expense of the Giants but to-day they again slipped back as a result of their defeat by the Brooklyn Dodgers in a match that went to eleven innings and produced no less than 27 runs altogether. Three home runs were scored by each side.

The first of the series of matches between the New York Yankees and the Detroit Tigers, the two leading teams of the American League, was postponed on account of the weather conditions. Results of to-day's matches follow:

NATIONAL LEAGUE

	R.	H.	E.
Philadelphia	4	9	1
Pittsburgh	5	7	1
New York	5	11	1
St. Louis	8	16	1

(Danning scored a home run for the Giants).

Brooklyn	14	22	2
Chicago	12	20	3

(Philips, Cuccinello and Taylor scored home runs for the Dodgers and Galan, Chuck Klein and Cavarratta scored for the Cubs. There were eleven innings).

Boston	4	10	0

AMERICAN LEAGUE

	R.	H.	E.
Chicago	12	14	0
Philadelphia	3	9	2
St. Louis	1	7	0
Boston	2	8	1

(Wes Farrell scored a home run for the Red Sox).

Cleveland	6	14	1
Washington	4	8	1

TOURING BASEBALL TEAM BACK

JAPANESE SIDE IN U. S.

PLAYER REMAINS BEHIND

Yokohama, July 16. Japan's first professional baseball team returned from an invasion of America to-day, proudly displaying their record of 75 victories, 34 defeats, and one tied game in 110 encounters on the Pacific Coast of the United States and Canada.

The aggregation, dubbed the Tokyo Giants while on their tour, returned seventeen strong instead of the eighteen members it comprised when it left Japan in February. Missing was Fumio Horio, star outfielder, who was brought by the Sacramento team of the Pacific Coast League. Horio was born in Hawaii and is an American citizen.—Rengo.

BRADDOCK FOR ENGLAND

London, July 7.

James J. Braddock, the new heavy-weight champion of the world, is to visit England and Ireland, where he will give a series of exhibitions. He will sail in August.

Joe Gould, Braddock's manager, stated that he had received 10 transatlantic calls from Dublin, London and Manchester. That from Manchester was from Braddock's father.

Gould is not accepting any of the proposals for Braddock to fight for his title for the time being. He has received many offers from all over the world.

Gould announced that he was not in the least interested in a fight at the present between Braddock and Schmeling.

After Baer's defeat his hands were examined by X-ray and it was shown that there were two fractures of small bones of the right hand and a chip fracture of the left hand.

The right hand had a swelling the size of a marble near the wrist joint. Max Baer's family, although downhearted over his defeat, confidently predict that Max will win back the title or else his younger brother, Buddy, who has a string of k.o. victories to his credit, will do the job.

Max Baer, film star and playboy of the ring, laughed and clowning his way lightly to the heavy-weight crown, which he held for just a year.

Braddock, known as the "Jersey Thunderbolt," had to surmount numerous obstacles in his climb to the top of the fight ladder.

Braddock was considered the best long shot challenger for 43 years. He was superbly trained and confident that he had the stamina to last the full distance.

Bier has been a glamorous, courageous, mischievous, temperamental and emotional figure. He likes going to night clubs, spends money like water, hates training, and going to bed early and doing what he is told. He is as strong as the oxen he often used to pole-axe and intersperses his clowning in the ring with terrific punches.

Braddock, on the other hand, is almost the complete antithesis of the ex-champion. Married and the father of three children, he is a boxer to whom fighting is a business and a vocation. He likes to fight, is devoted to his family, has known the pinch of hard times and has had an in-and-out career in the ring. He has had more ups and downs in the last seven years than the average men achieves in a lifetime.

Only a few months ago he was drawing the equivalent to the English dole, and was only allowed to keep his rooms because the landlord was an ardent boxing fan.

He has worked as a longshoreman at the docks for a mere pittance.

The word quit is not in his vocabulary and, when asked his opinion about the outcome of the fight, he would reply as likely as not "I'll do my damndest."

HEDLEY VERITY

Hedley Verity's Fifth Successive Year

London, June 28.

Hedley Verity, the Yorkshire and England left-arm bowler, yesterday took his hundredth wicket of the season. He is the first bowler of the summer to do so.

Before the present series of matches began, Verity and Freeman, of Kent, were level with 96 wickets each. Kent, however, are not playing until Saturday. Verity took the four wickets he required in Glamorgan's first innings at Bradford.

He has now taken 100 or more wickets in five consecutive seasons. His totals are:

1932	146
1934	100

Being mainly a leg-break bowler, he owes very little to the new L.B.W. rule, as he has taken only three wickets by this means.

"A" DIVISION MATCHES

CHINESE TO MEET CRAIGENCOWER

The recently revised Lawn Tennis League fixtures come into force to-day when "A" Division matches are to be played.

The Chinese R.C. "A" players are due to meet the Craigengower C.C., who lost their first match of the season last week when they went down to the Kowloon C.C. by the odd set. The Chinese have not yet been beaten and should win to-day at Causeway Bay.

The full programme of matches for this afternoon is as follows: Chinese "A" v. Craigengower; Chinese "B" v. Chinese "C"; U. S. R. C. v. Indian R. C.; Hongkong C. C. v. Kowloon C. C.

Len Harvey and Eddie Phillips are to meet in an eliminating contest for the heavy-weight championship, the winner (says the Boxing Board) to meet the title-holder, Jack Petersen.

He has worked as a longshoreman at the docks for a mere pittance. The word quit is not in his vocabulary and, when asked his opinion about the outcome of the fight, he would reply as likely as not "I'll do my damndest."

CHAPTER XXVIII

Katharine threw wide the casement window, looking down at the garden below. The long shadows of morning lay everywhere; the borders were starred with dewy drops. Yesterday, yesterday, she said to herself, had been her wedding day.

To-day she and Michael would acknowledge their marriage before all the world. She had decided that the still watches of the night. There was to be no more waiting, no more pretence or secrecy. By this time Sally Moon would have heard the news, no doubt, from Michael's own lips. Sally would be angry—furiously angry—but that would pass. Pride would come to her rescue. She could make it appear that she had discarded Michael.

At the thought of him, Katharine's eyes darkened suddenly. She drew a long breath. She was Michael's wife. The miracle had happened yesterday.

At any moment now he would telephone her. The bell would ring and before one of the maids could answer it Katharine herself would do so. His voice would sound in her ears. That deep, drawing, wholly delightful voice of Michael's.

Katharine bathed and dressed, still wrapped in the dream. Her green linen frock and the brown and white shoes with the buckskin fringes and a string of dull white beads that looked creamy against her burnish.

But Michael didn't call. Breakfast passed. Bertine said something about missing the rolls for lunch for the day before, and Katharine came out of her trance to stare at her step-mother as at a perfect stranger.

"What did you say, Bertine?"
 "I said that Cook was furious when the rolls didn't arrive yesterday. We waited and waited, Victor," said Bertine, with that infuriating smile of hers, "and this girl never showed up. Nora Willis was here and there wasn't a thing but whole wheat bread in the house. You know Nora hates it."

This went on for some time. Katharine, breaking bits of toast and arranging them in a geometrical pattern on the pink Spode plate, paid little heed. Bertine was trying to irritate her, trying to lead her into some sort of explanation. Her lips parted, meaning her step-mother's flies simply could not reach Katharine.

Her father glanced over his newspaper which he had folded back to the financial page. The telephone rang in the study. Katharine could hear the jangling of the bell, and every nerve in her body responded to the summons. Any moment now Bertine would call her.

But it was only Leonard Willis, making a golf engagement with her father. Her heart raced and slowed again. Not for her.

The morning draped past. Michael must be angry with her—she must have been too regressive in her manner when he called her last night. Oh, he'd have to learn to understand her better—he'd have to see it meant nothing when she was cool and standoffish. She had crawled into her shell for so many years that it was hard, all at once, to break the habit. And she loved him so terribly!

At last, unable to bear the silence further, she got into the car and drove over to the riding school. Tips was in the yard, feeding some chickens that fluffed about on the bare earth. He looked up expectantly.

"No'm, Mister Michael, he ain't come back, miss." Tips' white teeth showed. "Pa, he thinks it's mighty funny. He went off last night soon after those men left."

"Went off?" Katharine stared at him. "Yes'm. He says he's gone to New York and he says he'll lock up this morning when I go in to call him for breakfast, sure enough, he ain't been back."

"Well, thank you very much, Tips. No, I won't make an appointment to ride just now."

Katharine went back to the car. Automatically her fingers turned the ignition key. She started the motor, drove off almost blindly.

Michael had gone away! He hadn't let her know. What in heaven's name did this mean?

And he told her the truth when he said those men could not possibly bring evil tidings to him, that his state was clear? She would have staked her life yesterday upon his honesty, but this new development brought terror to her soul. That was she to do? There was no one she could tell, no one she could turn to now.

Or was there?
 Violet Merse's wise, kind, gentle face came to Katharine's mind. In spite of her instinctive distrust, her image always to stand upon her own feet, she was drawn irresistibly to this new friend.

Violet was in a basket chair under the apple trees, knitting a pink sweater for Sybil. "How nice to see you! We've been missing you." Then her keen perceptions told her something was wrong. "My dear, what's up? Can I help?"

Katharine sat down and the whole story poured from her lips. She held nothing back. Violet Merse did not interrupt once, but her dark eyes reflected a boundless sympathy.

"What am I to do?" Katharine finished dully. "I must have been and yesterday. He's run away now. Evidently it was all a horrible joke to him..."

The girl lifted her head. "You didn't really and truly?"
 "He's not said," Violet Merse assured her. "There's some mystery here. It can probably be cleared up. Wait and see."

"If my father finds out—or Bertine—" Katharine went on, "I might as well be dead."

"Don't talk like that. Do you suppose," ventured Mrs. Merse, "that neither one of them—your father or stepmother—has a single folly with which to reproach themselves?"

"I don't know. Probably not," "Nonsense," said Violet briskly. "Anyhow, you're not to worry about them. Brace up, child. The world looks frightful to you, but probably in a week from now the whole affair will be straightened out."

"You think so?"
 "I really do."

But after the girl had gone away Violet Merse was not so certain. What a strange tangle of circumstances it was! Certainly, on the face of it, one wouldn't say that a young man who was engaged to one girl and married to another and who, further, disappeared on the night following the ceremony, sounded particularly honourable. Especially since two detectives had visited him just an hour or two before his departure.

In a hospital ward in the city, high above the turgid stream that was the East River, Michael Hawthorne lay. He tossed and turned on his narrow bed, and occasionally muttered an incoherent word or two.

Miss Smithers, the nurse on duty in the ward, glanced at him interestedly as she made an entry in his chart.

"Good-looking fellow," she said to the supervisor who was a friend of hers. "It's too bad."

A newspaper reporter whose "beat" included this particular hospital wrote a brief paragraph about a handsome young man "possibly 27 years old" who had been injured in a taxi-car accident at Park avenue and 48th street. The city editor ran a blue pencil through a good many items that night. So the story of Michael's misadventures appeared only in the early editions of the newspaper.

The late edition, which came to the city at midnight, did not contain this account. Katharine, distraught as she was, searched the papers for mention of accidents, since Violet Merse had, sensibly enough, suggested that some such happening might explain Michael's absence. She did not really believe in the possibility. By this time she was fairly well convinced that Michael Hawthorne had played a cruel joke on the girl who had married him.

So the day passed, and the mystery deepened. And in Katharine's sick heart hope fluttered and died.

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

Cary Grant, who was one of the stars of "The Eagle and The Hawk," returns again to a role in an aviation film, Paramount's "Wings in the Dark." The picture, starring Grant with Myrna Loy, comes to the Alhambra Theatre on Saturday. Although "The Eagle and The Hawk" was a picture of war aviation, "Wings in the Dark" is devoted to depicting the thrills and romance in the development of peace-time aviation.

Grant plays the role of a scientific explorer of the air, a man who strives to make aviation safe by perfecting blind-flying. When he is blinded in an accident, Myrna Loy, the girl who loves him, helps him to carry on his work with money she earns in spectacular stunt flying. Grant learns how she has been helping him; he leaves her rather than accept charity. But fate intervenes and Grant, in a gripping dramatic climax, goes on a flight that saves Miss Loy's life and unites the lovers. Directed by James Flood, the picture features Roscoe Karns, Hobart Cavanaugh and Dean Jagger in the principal featured roles.

"The Mystery of Edwin Drood"

The largest motion picture set since the making of the famous "March of the Furies" was built at Universal Studios for the filming of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," the sensational and spine tingling mystery drama which comes to the King's Theatre on Friday with Claude Rains in the starring role, supported by a brilliant cast. An entire English village of the Victorian period was built, streets, stores, a beautiful cathedral, a young ladies' finishing school, all absolutely authentic as to every particular were constructed, and when one stepped into the village streets he felt as though he had been transported to another country. The furnishing of the interior settings for this picture, which is laid in the period of 1864, required months of research and search for the proper furnishings. A brilliant and colorful cast is seen with Claude Rains in the film. Among the featured players are Douglas Montgomery, Heather Angel, David Manners, Valerie Hobson, Francis L. Sullivan, Forrester Harvey, E. E. Clive, Walter Kingsford and many others. Stuart Walker directed.

"The Winning Ticket"

A new laugh-making combination, in the persons of Leo Carrillo and Louise Fazenda, presenting an Italian farber and his Irish wife, aided and abetted by Ted Healy. This unusual team makes its debut in "The Winning Ticket" showing at the Oriental Theatre to-morrow and Thursday, as a hilarious story of the Irish Sweepstakes and the trials and tribulations in a mixed-nationalities family over the loss of a winning ticket. Intimate human touches of home life and a romantic love story are woven into the structure of hilarious comedy. A barbers' picnic, comical family arguments in mixed languages, a screamingly funny episode in a jail and other highlights embellish the story.

al career with Eva La Galienne at the Civic Repertory Theatre, George Brent, Colin Clive, Peggy Wood, of musical comedy fame, Henrietta Crossman, C. Aubrey Smith, Leo G. Carroll and Phyllis Coghlan.

"Woman in the Dark"

Does a woman who owes her attempt at success to a man have a right to repudiate her obligations to him? Is she entitled to freedom from a man who she eventually realizes she doesn't love? This situation, cleverly conceived and developed by Dashiell Hammett, author of the Thin Man, forms one of the all-absorbing highlights in his latest drama of "dangerous romance," "Woman in the Dark," which is now showing at the King's Theatre. Louise Loring, a beautiful singer, has had financial backing from Billy Rose, the famous man-about-town. After her concert tour last financial year, Robson tells her that he regards the money he gave her not as a loan but as an "investment." For a time she dodges his demands, but as Robson gradually becomes more and more distrustful to her, she decides to leave him for good. Robson, of course, is equally determined to prevent her from going. When she takes refuge with Bradley, an ex-convict, Robson trumps up charges to have them both arrested. In an effort to rid herself of Robson and to keep Louis and Bradley are involved in an exciting chain of events that build rapidly to a typical Hammett denouement. Fay Wray is beautiful and appealing as Louise Loring and Ralph Bellamy portrays the ex-convict vainly trying to live down his past.

Melvin Douglas, stage and screen star, in the polished, relentless Robson, and Roscoe Ates, as Bradley's pal, brings laughs with his characteristically fast and further enhanced by Granville Bates, Ruth Gillette, and Nell O'Day.

"Vagabond Lady"

HONGKONG CRAFT LEAVES JAPAN FOR AMERICA

Word has been received at the local office of the C.P.R. to the effect that the yacht Romance sailed from Yokohama on Saturday afternoon bound for Vancouver.

The Romance, which was built in Hongkong for Captain E. P. Green, left here about six weeks ago for Yokohama with the Captain, who is a retired C.P.R. commander, his son Philip, and a Chinese sailor aboard.

Some trouble was experienced in Yokohama when the Chinese disappeared, but the information received in Hongkong does not state whether he was located before sailing.

has any feature comedy called for such lavish wardrobes for its principal players as does this picture. The clothes worn by Evelyn Venable, the leading lady, represent the last word in dress creations while those that attire the male principals are equally smart and exclusive. It is not such a fashion display as is seen in this picture is permitted in a light comedy but in this case it is made possible because the story revolves round the adventures of a wealthy and aristocratic family of modern times. Sam Taylor directed and Robert Young is featured as well as many others including Evelyn Venable, who is seen as his leading lady.

QUOTA REGULATIONS

PRESIDENT EMPOWERED

Washington, July 22. Moving to protect the Administration's farm programme against court attacks, the Senate to-day voted to validate the crop control contracts between the Agriculture Department and the farmers. The Senate then struck out the last vestige of the price-fixing provisions of the Agriculture Adjustment Administration by adopting an amendment requiring that no marketing agreement may be entered into among the handlers of agricultural products. The Senate, by a vote of 60-17, adopted the A.A.A. amendment permitting the President to impose quota restrictions on all agricultural imports to preserve the price gains achieved by the domestic farm programme.—Reuter.

AN ILLEGAL

OF GIRL

Allegations that the defendant had paid $145 for the girl, and had employed her for an immoral purpose, were made by Inspector K. W. Andrew, of the S. C. A., when prosecuting Ng Yee-mui, married woman, before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with having on May 16 at No. 527, Queen's Road West, second floor, with others not in custody, taken part in a transaction, the object of which was to transfer the possession or custody of a girl, Li Kwan-ying, aged 16, for a valuable consideration.

The defendant said a man named Lo Chi-kwai had brought the girl to her, but denied that she had paid him any money. On the other hand, she had paid the girl $145, and would receive the money back after the girl was given away in marriage.

Inspector Andrew said the money was paid to Lo Chi-kwai, who had brought the girl from Pakhoi, against a debt which her father owed him. He handed the girl over to the defendant for $145. The girl had been kept by the defendant since April 29, and she told the police that she had been forced into prostitution by the defendant. The case came to the notice of the police as a result of an argument between the girl and the defendant on board the steamer Prosper on Saturday. Apparently the girl was trying to run away from the defendant.

Mr. Schofield imposed a fine of $500, or, in default, six months' hard labour.

A 13-year-old newspaper hawker, Yeung Tim, was victimized by a thief who stole from his trousers pocket, while he was asleep, a sum of 65 cents in silver and copper. He awoke and caught the thief in the act. The man, Wong Ping-wo, aged 26, unemployed, ran away and was arrested by two Chinese detectives who happened to be passing. He appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning, and was sentenced to three months' hard labour.

NO UNIFORMS OF FIELD DAYS

(Special to "Telegraph")

Berlin, July 22. Further developments have occurred in the Nazi church war as the result of a new order issued by Herr Frick, the Minister of the Interior.

The order forbids Confessional Church and youth organizations, especially Catholic, from wearing uniforms or badges, or to parade publicly with flags, or participate in field days.

Similar orders have been enforced in a number of districts, but the new order will extend throughout the whole country.—Reuter Special.

ITALY'S TANGLED FINANCES

Internally, despite the fact that Italy was virtually off gold internationally inasmuch as the exports of currency were strictly controlled.

The decision to abandon the forty per cent. clause was taken at a secret meeting of the Council after the Bourse closed last night. It is the first blow to Italy's finances from the projected Abyssinian campaign, to prepare for which the country's excessive purchases abroad were undertaken. These entailed a heavy gold drain on the Treasury.

Recent endeavours to raise private credits abroad having failed, Italy has found herself heavily in arrears with the exchange she has guaranteed. The suspension of the note cover clause means that she now will have about $93,000,000 available for exchange operations.—Reuter.

CONFERENCE PLANNED

Washington, July 22. Dr. D. Dorfman and Dr. Frank Waring, economic analysts on the Tariff Commission, together with the Manila Trade Commissioner, Mr. Bartlett Richards, have been designated by the Inter-Departmental Committee on the Philippines to represent the United States in a joint trade conference with the Philippines representatives.

The conference will begin in September and is to lay the groundwork for regularizing trade relations between the Philippine Commonwealth and the United States. Dr. Dorfman and Dr. Waring will go to Manila in August.

Meanwhile, the possibility that the United States may place the Philippines in the same preferred tariff category as Cuba is being discussed in authoritative circles.—Reuter.

WORLD GLIDING

GERMAN FLIES OVER
300 MILES

Berlin, July 22. A world gliding record is claimed by Ludwig Hoffmann, who, starting from Wasserkuppe, in Hesse, yesterday morning, landed to-day near Oskovice, a distance of 310 miles.

This beats the previous record by 80 miles.—Reuter Special.

London, July 22. The Under-Secretary for Air, Sir Philip Sassoon, announced in the Commons that the Government had decided to make an annual grant of £500 for five years for the assistance of gliding. A scheme for the allocation of grants for development of gliding had been submitted by the British Gliding Association and had been accepted in principle.—United Press.

SOME RAIN

The anticyclone over the Pacific to the south-east of Japan has increased to moderate intensity and is extending westward. The typhoon is situated about 100 miles to the west of Fochow, moving west. The position of the depression to the north-east of Yap is uncertain. Local forecast:—West to S.W. winds, moderate to fresh; cloudy, some rain.

The Swedish Consulate General in Shanghai will be obliged for any information about the present whereabouts of the Swedish citizen, Erik Wilhelm Fridman, who returned to Shanghai from Hongkong during last winter.

The Royal Engineers Old Comrades' Association's usual fortnightly whist drive and tombola will be held in Wellington Barracks, in the open air, at 9 p.m. on Monday, July 29.

"ADVERTISE

PROSPERITY

Advertising as an aid to national recovery was advocated by Sir Robert Webber, a past president of the Newspaper Society, at the Advertising Convention at Torquay. "If prosperity depends on peace—and in any case nobody wants war—there seems to be a good cause for advertising peace," he said.

"National recovery might come more speedily through a peace campaign in all the newspapers of the world than by any other means."

Sir Robert, who dubbed the six-penny telegram the "Bannerman," contended that the results obtained by the Post Office showed that there were many other directions in which they might expect Government support for their belief.

He advocated the spending by the Ministry of Transport of £50,000 on an advertising programme to educate road users in their duties, the resuscitation of the Empire Marketing Board, and greater advertising by industry, possibly on a co-operative basis. "Is everything being done to popularise our famous cutlery, our famous cloths and dress material?" he asked.

Lord Hiffie, who presided, emphasised that the very basis of national success was confidence. The Jubilee celebrations, advertised to the whole world our confidence in the Royal Family and our confidence in our constitution. His advertising value had been enormous. "We can say with truth that the Jubilee celebrations have materially helped forward national recovery."

Mr. Alfred Pemberton said:—"The Press has always been, and remains, far ahead of every other type of advertising media, both in economy and results."

FIGHTING SPIRIT

MR. LLOYD GEORGE HITS
BACK AT GOVERNMENT

London, July 22. A vigorous reply to the Government resurrection of his New Deal proposals was made by Mr. Lloyd George, when in the course of an interview to-day, he declared that the Government seemed to regard the present economic conditions of the country with "boastful complacency."

Most of their reply was occupied, not with an examination of his Scheme, but a "torchlight procession of their own achievements."

Mr. Lloyd George said that he noted the Government admission that if nothing more is being done by them to remedy conditions it could not be attributed to any lack of money.

He had received letters from Mr. Baldwin saying that good Government would be more rapidly and completely achieved by the methods they themselves had adopted.

Mr. Lloyd George adds: Here then is clear cut issue for the decision of the electors at the approaching general election. The Government have had plans submitted to it to provide more vigorous and swifter action than it was at present achieving.

Mr. Lloyd George stated that he was "throwing" a great campaign on the New Deal.

The Campaign would be ready on the assumption that the general election might occur at the end of November. He was organising it throughout the country and was meeting with astonishing response.—Reuter.
